arrangements are complete for l Roosevelt's departure. At 7:30 tomorrow morning a big au- le will draw up in the court- yard of [illegible]. The block will be cleared of [illegible] nd policemen will be on the low roofs of adjoining buildings.

Colonel Roosevelt will wear heavy clothing and sit in a wheel chair, which will be lowered in a private elevator from the third floor to the ground level and wheeled to the automobile. He will be bundled up in rugs and driven slowly to the station. A private entrance to the train floor will be guarded by policemen, and the street for a hundred feet either way will be closed.

Attendants will carry the wheel chair down to the train shed and will lift the chair to the level of the car step so that Colonel Roosevelt can step into the train. Attached to the regular train will be the colonel's private car and another for the traveling correspondents and physicians.

Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel and Theodore, Jr., and Mrs. Longworth will occupy the colonel's car. Dr. Alexander Lambert and Dr. Terrell, the colonel's physicians, will be quartered with the newspaper men in the second. A bell cord will be arranged so that the patient from his bed can summon the physicians at any time. The doctors, Mrs. Roosevelt and the colonel's daughters will be the nurses on the trip. It is the present plan to proceed through New York directly to Oyster Bay.

No Trace of Sepsis.

The blood test taken today indicated the patient's condition to be excellent. No trace of sepsis was found.

Colonel Roosevelt was taken today to the operating room for a last X-ray photograph by which the doctors expect to note whether nature's process of encasing the bullet has proceeded far enough that the missile will have appeared to be thrust away from the broken fourth rib. Much of the colonel's future activity will depend on what the pictures disclose.

Special precautions for the protection of Colonel Roosevelt when he leaves Mercy hospital were announced by Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler today.

The assistant chief of police will lead 35 patrolmen who will guard Colonel Roosevelt en route from the hospital to the railway station. A force of detectives will guard him until the train passes the Indiana state line.

Bullet Lies Outside Rib.

The position of the bullet that so nearly cost Colonel Roosevelt his life was fixed with precision for the first time today. An X-ray photograph was taken, and from this it was learned that the bullet lay on the outside of the broken rib. Until this photograph was taken the physicians had been unable to state positively whether it was on the outside or inside the rib.

"We know definitely that the bullet lies outside the rib, where it can do no harm," said Lambert. "It lies in such a position that I could reach the spot precisely through a small incision should Colonel Roosevelt desire to have it removed at any time. It is a matter of his own preference."

Colonel Roosevelt said he did not think he ever would have the bullet removed.

When the dressing was removed from the wound today it was found to be stained with blood, mingled with the discharge of serum.

"The discharge is from the entire infiltrated tract," said Dr. W. B. McCauley. "In such a case as this white corpuscles of the blood are deposited over the surface of the wound to form a protective wall. When the inflammation subsides permanent tissue begins to grow to fill up the wound. The white corpuscles dissolve and are discharged as serum."

After Colonel Roosevelt is at Oyster Bay there will be little relaxation in

"THE DAWNING OF A NEW DAY"

DISCUSS PUBLIC UTILITY BILLS

SMITH AND STREET TALK BEFORE OPEN FORUM

Springs Man Against Both Measures; Denverite for One, Against Other

At the meeting of the Open Forum in the Odeon theater last night, the two public utility measures to be voted on in November were discussed by H. Alexander Smith of this city, and Claude E. Street of Denver, state oil inspector. Mr. Smith spoke against both bills, presenting as his main argument the fact that the national civic federation of New York is making an exhaustive examination of all public utility bills in the country, and that it will publish the results of this examination early in the coming year for the use of legislatures enacting public utilities measures. Mr. Street spoke against the Denver trades and labor assembly public utilities bill. Concerning the other measure, however, the proposed amendment to the constitution establishing a public utilities court, Mr. Street differed radically with Smith.

In his arguments against the public utilities court, Mr. Smith made frequent references to questions asked by W. M. Persons of Colorado college of leading economists and prominent members of public utility commissions in states having on such commissions such men as Hadley, Cummins, Taussig, Reamer, etc. He based much of his argument against the bill on the replies of these men. He argued that the restrictions placed upon the business of public utility corporations by the terms of this amendment would keep millions of dollars worth of legitimate investments out of the state. He objected to the restriction placed upon the personnel of the bill in the requirement that no person should be a member of such a court if he had held public utilities securities within the last five years.

He objected to the power given the

FORTY BADLY INJURED WHEN AUTO EXPLODES

PETALUMA, Cal., Oct. 20.—Forty persons were severely burned in an automobile explosion here today, which may cost the lives of Mayor Zartman of this town and three others, who possible are fatally injured.

A crowd gathered about a burning automobile which had been dragged from a garage. Mayor Zartman, who is a former chief of the fire department, responded to the fire alarm, and attacked the blaze with a chemical fire extinguisher. The mayor was thrown 40 feet by the explosion which ensued. James Mott, Maurice Hickey and William Brandon were enveloped in flames and rescued a few moments later at the point of death. A crowd was swept by a blast of flames and several persons were trampled upon in the panic which followed. Every nurse in Petaluma has been engaged.

Dynamite Trials to Be Resumed Today

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 20.—Another week's work in the presentation of documentary evidence by the government will confront the jury when the dynamite conspiracy trial is resumed tomorrow.

It is expected at the end of the week that more than 700 exhibits will have been identified. Then the witnesses, who are to give testimony, will be called. Among the first witnesses to be called is Ortie E. McManigal. McManigal's recital of his dynamiting trip in which he implicated others and confesses personally to blowing up 21 structures, will occupy on direct and cross-examination about a week.

DRY FARMING CONGRESS OPENS AT LETHBRIDGE

LETHBRIDGE, Alberta, Oct. 20.—The seventh International Dry Farming congress, called for assembly at Lethbridge, October 19-26, is now ready for the opening ceremony to be performed by Lieutenant-Governor Bulyea of Alberta tomorrow. Delegates from all parts of Canada and the United States reported, with delegations from the foreign countries, Brazil, Chile, Persia, Turkey, Russia, Mexico and every part of the world.

The popular idea of dry farming being interesting only to places semi-arid is thus refuted, and, referring to the matter today, Dr. John A. Widtsoe, international president, pointed out that dry farming, aiming at the conservation of moisture for crop purposes, was of interest to every country where the agriculturist holds places.

LITTLE CHANGE IN BALKAN WAR

REPORTED BATTLES LACK CONFIRMATION

War Correspondents and Military Attaches Start for Front Today

LONDON, Oct. 20.—No really serious fighting has been reported from the seat of war. The Montenegrins have captured Plava and Gunsuire, and the Greeks have occupied Elassino but these are regarded as minor affairs in which no real resistance was offered.

On the Servian and Bulgarian frontiers, the situation is little changed. An unconfirmed report says the Bulgarians have captured Kirk-Kilisseh, but, like many similar reports, this is probably untrue.

From both Constantinople and Sofia come constant denials of successes claimed by the respective opponents. For instance, an official statement tonight from Sofia says all the reported Turkish invasions of Bulgarian territory are pure inventions, while on the previous day the Turkish government denied the capture of Turkish troops by Montenegrins at Tushi.

This campaign of misrepresentation has become so serious that the authorities of Sofia have issued a decree threatening summary punishment by martial law to those who circulate such inventions.

The Servian advance in the direction of Uskup encounters little resistance. It is reported that the Servian headquarters are being slowly transferred from Nish to Verna. In this district heavy rains are impeding operations.

Large numbers of war correspondents and many military attaches will start for the front tomorrow. They will work under the greatest difficulty because of the severe restrictions imposed. According to a Belgrade dispatch, the Bulgarian government declines to permit attaches to join the general staff.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 20. It is reported from Janina that six Greek warships and three transports have appeared off the coast of Epirus. Their apparent object is the landing of troops.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—An order was given to the army of Thrace to take a vigorous offensive against Bulgaria, according to a Constantinople dispatch to the Daily Telegraph. In the meantime the Turkish fleet has been recalled from the Black sea and ordered to pass through the Dardanelles, with instructions to seek and attack the Greek fleet. It is estimated that 40,000 Turks are concentrated at Servia, in Macedonia, about 20 miles from Mount Olympus, with strong artillery.

CETTINJE, Montenegro, Oct. 20.—It is officially announced that the Montenegrin forces captured the town of Piuva yesterday. The battle lasted two days.

ATHENS, Oct. 20.—After a four hours' engagement the Greeks yesterday dislodged the Turks from the strong positions they had taken in the defense of Elassino, at the foot of

TYPHOON IN PHILIPPINES CAUSED DEATH OF 1,000

MANILA, Oct. 20.—The typhoon that swept over several of the Philippine islands, October 16, resulted in the death of more than 1,000 persons. Four unidentified Americans, three men and a little girl, were among those killed.

The coasting steamer Tayabas foundered off Escalente. The bodies of 15 Filipinos and Spaniards came ashore.

The typhoon practically wiped out the towns of Bogo, Danao, Toledo, Maasin and Escalente.

COLOMBIAN FAILS TO SEE COL. ROOSEVELT

Detectives Prevent Visit From Diplomatic Agent Who Says He Will Follow to Oyster Bay

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—An attempt to see Colonel Roosevelt was made at Mercy hospital shortly before midnight tonight by Luis E. Molina, who gave his address at Bogota, Colombia, and said he was a secret diplomatic representative of the Colombian government. He was stopped by the guard detectives and city police who were on duty.

Molina said his father is a senator of Colombia. He sent Colonel Roosevelt a postal card and wrote him a long letter containing accusations that the colonel had committed an atrocious crime in taking Panama from Colombia, and bidding him beware of the vengeance of God. Molina was accompanied by two Mexicans who gave their names as B. Carello and Esteban Moran. They said they had known Molina but a few hours.

Will Follow to New York.

Molina said he would go to New York on the same train with the colonel and would see him there or would follow him to Oyster Bay. He exhibited a ticket over the Pennsylvania railroad to New York that would entitle him to travel on the train taken by the colonel. He also displayed a large roll of bills.

The detectives, after questioning Molina, permitted him to depart. Colonel Roosevelt knew nothing of the attempt to see him.

Molina sent a box of flowers to the colonel and followed them with a note written on a postal card. It read:

"Colonel Roosevelt: I sincerely desire your complete recovery. Now that you are laying on a bed of pain remember Almighty God and how easy it is to disappear from the earth. After this remember your greatest offense in your official career—the robbery of Panama from Colombia. Try to remedy this iniquity and God will protect you."

The detectives said Molina was not armed. Molina said he came from New Orleans especially to see the colonel as soon as he heard of the shooting. He said he followed him in the west during his last speaking tour from Texas to California. His letter to the colonel follows:

Conveys Sentiment of Colombians.

"I have hurried from New Orleans on the expectation of being able to express to you personally my sympathy in your misfortune. This privilege, however, has been denied me. Nevertheless, I would like to convey to you the sentiment of the noblest people in South America and to inform you, colonel, that a time had come for your meditation on the blackest spot in the history of your life.

"Remember, Mr. Roosevelt, that although you are and have been a great world citizen, your entry into civilization from Africa and the homages you received from the world were marred by the refusal of the vicar of Christ at Rome to see you. This material demonstration of a divine will to humble your pride will serve to call to your mind the fact that although you might have been proclaimed in a hypocritical way the greatest man since the time of Napoleon, your star has been descending and will continue to descend until you clear your conscience of the most atrocious and wicked act you ever committed in your life.

"We Colombians hope to see your elected for a third term president of the United States. You injured us supremely, but we trust in God and he will certainly touch your heart and compel you by moral force to return to us what belongs to us, the sovereignty of Colombia over Panama, our rebel state.

"God help you, Mr. Roosevelt, to recover fully. I have come expressly from New Orleans to speak to you personally, but this opportunity has been denied me. I will see you, however, at New York."

FEDERALS REVOLT AND JOIN WITH FELIX DIAZ

Hospital Corps Organized at Vera Cruz, Where Battle Today Is Anticipated---New Leader Optimistic

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 20.—The soldiers of the Twenty-first battalion garrisoning Fort Ulua, located on an island in the local harbor, have revolted and joined the revolutionary forces of Felix Diaz. The gunboats Bravo and Morelos opened fire on the refugees, killing several and wounding others. The soldiers of Fort Ulua garrison remained inert, refusing to return the fire of their comrades.

The situation is especially serious as Fort Ulua is used as a penitentiary. Until the fire was opened by the Bravo and Morelos, after the desertion of the garrison at Fort Ulua, it was difficult to understand the attitude of the gunboats. Commodore Azueta, comanding the warships, still loyal to the government, kept his guns and searchlights trained incessantly on the city, allowing no communication between the boats and shore.

Diaz Optimistic.

Felix Diaz continues optimistic regarding his chances for a successful revolutionary movement. Today he said that the officers and crews of the gunboats here are with him and that Commodore Azueta himself had promised to join his forces, only changing his mand at the last moment before the Diaz movement was openly launched. When asked why his shore batteries did not fire on the federal warships, General Diaz replied that this would be wholly unnecessary. He felt that it would be extremely foolish to disable the boats which he feels certain will enlist in his cause. He declared he daily sent the crews water, provisions and money.

General Diaz further believes the gunboat Progresso, whose whereabouts has not been known, today shelled and took the important port, Coatzacoalcos, which is also the northern terminus of the Tehuantepec railway. He said the local garrison was left in command of the rebel ally, Colonel Guevara.

Today General Diaz sought official recognition for his propaganda by the United States government. He said he has represented his cause to the authorities at Washington through the American consul at Vera Cruz, claiming that his possession of two important seaports and an army of approximately 5,000 entitles him to recognition.

Denies Expected Battle.

When asked if he expected an engagement with the federals, Diaz replied in the negative. Many federal chiefs, he believes, are about to join

UNITED STATES CRUISER HAS REACHED VERA CRUZ

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 20.—The United States cruiser Des Moines, in command of Capt. Charles F. Hughes, steamed into this port during the night. An officer from the warship visited Gen. Felix Diaz and arranged an interview on behalf of Captain Hughes. General Diaz then visited the Des Moines, where the American captain and the leader of the new revolt had a long conference, the nature of which has not been divulged.

Two other American warships are expected to reach here at any time. The Spanish consul has sent out wireless messages to passing steamers to proceed here to take aboard Spanish subjects in case of a bombardment.

A German liner also has arrived here to take off German subjects in case of bombardment.

Minister's Reason for Being a Progressive

Dr. William Coburn of New York state, the well known evangelist who is speaking for the Progressive party, gives these reasons for his support of Colonel Roosevelt:

"You ask me how to vote? Go home and shut the door. Shut out the crack of the party whip and the voice of the party boss. Shut out the blare of the bands and the tumult of party strife. Find what is good for your home and remember that the town or city in which you live is made up of homes much like your own and what is good for your home is good for all. Remember that the state is made up of towns and the nation made up of states. What is good for your home is good for the nation and the world. This is simple and it is the best of politics and the highest patriotism.

"Think of the pale, half-starved women who work for their pitiless wage and whose working day never ends save with the grave. Think of the injured men who are barely able to live on their wage when well and for whose families no provision has been made when sick. Think of the poor, tottering with age, and seeking to warm at the cold ashes of a fire long ago gone out; yet they were men who gave their lives and all they had to give to the factory and the shop and who now totter because they gave so much. Think of the long hours and the relentless grind until men forget that they are common flesh and blood and the children of the Most High.

"Think of the prosperity of this great land of ours. Of its broad acres, its mighty harvests, its treasures of coal and iron and copper and gold and oil. Think now that in a land where want and poverty ought never to be known all this great wealth and prosperity reaches only a very few and that the poor are every hour becoming poorer, and the rich, richer. Think of the men who have, like leeches, fastened themselves so firmly upon the body politic and though full of blood they cling the tighter and suck the more.

"You ask me who is to be the next president? Obviously, one of three men. Taft; of whom Edison, the great inventor, with his quick perception, said: 'A good man, but the bunch have put it all over him.' Wilson; of whom Edison said: 'Another good man, but not trained to cope with the bunch.' Roosevelt; of whom Edison said: 'He is the only man in the country who can handle the bunch and is trained to the hour to do so.'

"Roosevelt; whom the Republican party pronounced at its convention the greatest living American and his administration the greatest and best since the days of Lincoln. Roosevelt; a greater and better man today than ever, who has, since the Republican convention spoke these remarkable words of eulogy, dined with kings, talked with the great statesmen at the capitals of the earth, heard the cry world-wide of suffering mankind, seen the burning bush and heard the call of God in the desert, received all of human eulogy and glory that any man could ask or care for.

"Roosevelt; who stands today with eye undimmed and natural strength unabated, the one unique figure of his age, towards whom more eyes are turned and more hands outstretched than towards any other living man."

Progressive Candidates Get Valuable Indorsement

Three Progressive candidates are indorsed by the Denver Post, according to its ticket, published on the first page yesterday morning under a four-column head. They are: Clarence P. Dodge of Colorado Springs, candidate for congressman-at-large; I. N. Stevens of Denver, for United States senator, short term, and Benjamin Griffith of Grand Junction, to succeed himself as attorney general. Most of the other candidates indorsed by the Post are Democratic.

The Post announces that its ticket is "just as complete and just as good as we know how to make it."

Mr. Dodge and Stephen Knight, Progressive nominee for state auditor, have been indorsed by the Citizens party and the Progressive Democracy club of Denver. These two organizations have completed a ticket, selecting their candidates from the Bull Moose, Republican and Democratic tickets.

The strength of the Citizens party, as shown by its overwhelming victory at the recent election in Denver, makes its indorsement of great value. The support of the Post and the Progressive Democracy club of Denver also are expected to have great weight in the campaign.

Mount Olympus, and occupied the town. Crown Prince Constantine was in personal command and received a baptism of fire. The Greek troops showed great courage. Their losses were small. The Turks retired toward Sarandaporo Pass, where the main forces had concentrated. The Greeks occupy all the heights to the north of Ellassino and a decisive battle is imminent.

DENVER, Oct. 20.—Two hundred of the 400 Greeks who held a meeting in Denver tonight, placed their names on the enlistment roll for service with their countrymen in the war against Turkey. More than half of them are trained soldiers, having seen service in the Grecian army. They will join several hundred Greeks recruited from Utah and Wyoming, and the force is expected to entrain at Denver the latter part of this week. At the meeting tonight $2,500 was raised to be used in the war.

FATALLY WOUNDED IN FIGHT OVER WOMAN

MONTE VISTA, Oct. 20.—Jealous of the attentions Merch Kennedy is alleged to have paid to his employer, Mrs. Bob McNeill, the divorced husband of the latter got into an altercation with Kennedy today which ended in the latter being stabbed and probably fatally wounded. Kennedy was foreman on Mrs. McNeill's ranch. McNeill visited the ranch today and while it is not known definitely what passed between the men, it is alleged that McNeil first struck Kennedy over the head and later stabbed him. Kennedy is not expected to live.

GIVES $150,000 FOR BIRDS

Mrs. Russell Sage has purchased Marsh Island, on the Gulf coast, southwest of New Orleans, and dedicated it as a married refuge for the migratory birds of America. At a cost of $150,000 the noted philanthropist has taken control of the most popular haunt of the southern market gunner and has given protection to the game birds that flock in millions to Marsh Island every winter. The island is about 18 miles long and nine miles wide. Mrs. Sage purchased it at the suggestion of Edward Mellhenny of Avery Island, La., who recently established a 13,000-acre bird refuge in Vermillion bay.

JOHNSON TAKES EASTERN DATES

STARTS ON FINAL TOUR TOMORROW

Shooting of Colonel Roosevelt Causes Change in Campaign Plans

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Governor Johnson left here this afternoon for New York, where he will complete arrangements to fill Colonel Roosevelt's speaking dates in the east during the rest of the campaign, and to direct the fight. The complete itinerary has not been given out, but it will embrace New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Delaware and Pennsylvania. He will travel by special train.

Before leaving, the governor issued a statement directed to the citizens of California, explaining his reasons for returning to the east. It follows:

"My campaign in the east was concluded last night in Chicago, and my preparations had been made for departure today to arrive in our state Wednesday night. I had expected to devote the rest of the time before election to California.

Shooting Changes Plans.

"The attempted assassination of Colonel Roosevelt has completely altered all of our plans, and as the vice presidential candidate of the Progressive party, I have been asked so far as I am able to take the burden that Colonel Roosevelt was so ably and so bravely carrying and to continue the campaign until its close, as had been contemplated by him. I felt that it was my duty to return to my native state and I was very loath to remain longer absent; but my enlistment in this cause for which we strive was not for a day but for all time, and when the leader of that cause was suddenly stricken and I found him helpless here, it seemed to have fallen to me to bear part of his burden, and to continue the struggle as we had planned for him to do.

"Reluctantly, therefore, for there are many reasons for my return that may be readily understood, I have yielded to the request of the Progressives of the nation, and shall insofar as I am able, continue this great battle that means so much for humanity. The cause for which we strive—popular rule and social and industrial justice—is so well understood in California that I feel it may be safely left to those who have made and won the fight there.

Will Continue the Fight.

"In the wider field of the nation the part has been mine in the last 60 days to preach our California doctrines, and in the remaining two weeks, the most critical period of the struggle, it has fallen to me to continue that work with added responsibility. I feel that the situation will thoroughly be appreciated by all of those in our great state of achievement who have been in sympathy with the work we have there done."

Doubt as to the application of a California law providing that a governor leaving the state for more than 60 days automatically loses his office, was dispelled in Governor Johnson's mind by the receipt of an opinion from Attorney General Webb of California.

This opinion was that a legislative resolution, passed before the governor had been thought of as a vice presidential candidate giving him permission to use his discretion about absenting himself from the state, was effective and that he would be safe in remaining away.

OCEAN TO OCEAN HIGHWAY

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

INDIANAPOLIS—A stone national highway from New York to San Francisco, to be completed by January 1, 1915, in time for the Panama exposition, is the dream of the motor car fraternity.

The plan provides for the setting aside of 1 per cent of its gross receipts for one year by every motor car and sundry manufacturing concern which participates. The amount is to be paid either in three yearly installments of one-third of 1 per cent each, or five yearly installments of one-fifth of 1 per cent each. No deviation is to be made from this plan.

Already practically every Indianapolis manufacturer has signified his intention of acceding to the agreement, and at a recent dinner in Indianapolis more than $300,000 was assured in 27 minutes.

Owing to its larger output Detroit promises to outdo Indianapolis. The city by the lake has begun activities, and large additions to the purse are sure to be forthcoming.

An appropriation of $10,000,000 will provide $5,000 for each mile of the roadway, to be spent for materials, which will be delivered on the ground out of the general fund.

The road proper is to be constructed by the counties through which it passes, under direction of war department engineers. The course of the roadway will be determined by a national commission of experts.

Simultaneously with activities in Detroit and Indianapolis work will be carried on among the manufacturers in Cleveland, Buffalo, New York and other important motor car centers.

The gross expense of the road, it is said, will be in the neighborhood of $25,000,000, and the promoters assert that more than 25,000 motor cars will run over it to the Panama exposition.

A SALARIED CAT

From the Springfield Republican.

The only salaried cat in the United States, so far as one can find out, has just died in New Orleans, and was given a proper burial. This was Old Tom, who for years had been carried on the board of trade as official rat catcher, with a salary of 10 cents a day, and was never discharged, though in his later years he was as reluctant as other veteran office-holders to get busy. But he had no enemies except of the feline sort, and his framed picture is to adorn the directors' room at the board of trade.

WHERE ROOSEVELT WAS SHOT BY JOHN SCHRANK

This photograph of Colonel Roosevelt shows him wearin the heavy army overcoat in which he was shot. The circle shows where the bullet entered, passing through a packet of manuscript he carried in an inner pocket of his inside coat. The thickness of the overcoat and manuscript probably saved Colonel Roosevelt's life. He leaves Chicago today for Oyster Bay.

the strict regime of the physicians for a week or 10 days. Colonel Roosevelt believes, however, that he will be able to speak in Madison Square Garden, New York, on October 30. He hopes to make one speech to summarize all of his reasons for seeking support for the Progressive party, and has begun to plan an address which he can deliver in 20 minutes.

"I am going to the meeting, anyway," he said, "even if I can speak only three words."

WOODMEN TRAIN WRECKED

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 20.—Forty-nine passengers were injured, none seriously, when a Woodmen of the World excursion train on the Illinois Central was wrecked today. A broken rail is believed to have derailed the four coaches that went into a ditch.

MARSHALL IN CALIFORNIA

OGDEN, Utah, Oct. 20.—Gov. Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, Democratic candidate for vice president, passed through here today en route to San Francisco, where he will select a site for the Indiana state building at the Panama-Pacific exposition. Governor Marshall also is scheduled to deliver several speeches in the interest of his party while on the Pacific coast.

SUFFERS FROM STROKE

PUEBLO, Oct. 20.—With face and body distorted almost beyond recognition, resulting from a stroke of apoplexy, Barney Evans, former commissioner of Pueblo county and a candidate for that office on the Progressive party ticket, was found unconscious in West Second street, where he had fallen today. It is believed he cannot recover.

FEW FLIES IN BOHEMIA

From Consul J. I. Brittain, Prague, Austria.

This consulate has from time to time received letters from manufacturers of various sorts of fly paper in the United States who wish to extend their trade. These letters have been fully answered, giving the names and addresses of local dealers, and also the various sorts of American and other fly paper sold here.

It is not possible to work up an extensive trade in Bohemia, as there are not sufficient flies to exterminate. In most of the dining rooms, during the course of a meal, perhaps three or four flies appear during the season. In restaurants there are very few flies.

Here screen doors to keep out flies and other insects are unknown. The buildings are all constructed of brick, stone, or concrete. The docks along the river front are of granite. The pavements and sidewalks are made of granite blocks. There are no wooden sidewalks, stairways or buildings in the city. Decayed vegetable or animal matter is not openly exposed to flies, and the streets are frequently cleaned during each day. There are no open drains in the city to attract and breed flies. I can only ascribe the absence of flies to the lack of breeding places.

It is estimated that more than $12,000,000 has been spent in a single year on patent medicines in Great Britain, which represents a sum sufficient to maintain 40,000 hospital or sanitarium beds.

INDEPENDENT CONCERNS SAY STANDARD OIL COMPANY MONOPOLY HAS BEEN DISSOLVED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—To sustain his contention that the decree dissolving the Standard Oil company gave the relief sought by the antitrust suit against the corporation, Attorney General Wickersham today issued a statement revealing some of the results of an inquiry he has been making into conditions in the oil industry.

The statement, intended as a further reply to criticisms that such decrees as that of the Standard Oil benefited the trusts, was built around a letter, optimistic as to present conditions, which the attorney general recently received from C. D. Chamberlain, secretary and general counsel of the National Petroleum association. That organization is composed of a large number of independent refining companies embracing, according to the attorney general, practically all the companies not connected with the Standard Oil.

Declares Conditions Are Better.

Attorney General Wickersham gave out with his statement a copy of a letter from Mr. Chamberlain who wrote that while the full effect of the decree cannot yet be judged, independents today have more unrestricted and uncontrolled opportunity to carry on their business "without unfair, secret and oppressive competition on the part of one great rival than they have enjoyed for years past."

Mr. Wickersham had written to Mr. Chamberlain, the statement said, for accurate information as to present conditions contrasted with those existing prior to the supreme court's decision in May, 1911.

Mr. Chamberlain pointed out that it was difficult to make such a comparison, "because the effect of the government's prosecution of the Standard Oil combination began practically with the filing of that suit in November, 1906; and from that date the practices of the Standard Oil combinated in large measure ceased to be predatory, and the independent dealers began to have a chance to live."

Rebate System Broken Up.

"This condition," Mr. Chamberlain added, "continuously improved during the pendency of the government's suit, and that improvement has continued since the decree of dissolution so that it may be stated that the giving of rebates upon which the Standard Oil monopoly was built up, has ceased, preferential rates are few and far between, and many other unethical commercial practices have become so unfrequent as hardly to cause complaint.

"In 1906 returns from the oil industry shows that the Standard Oil combination controlled about 84 per cent of the entire oil business of the United States and the remaining 16 per cent was distributed among the independent companies. The most accurate data which I have been able to secure show that at present the independent companies control 34 per cent, exclusive of California, where I am informed the independents control nearly 60 per cent.

"One other practical result of the government's prosecution and decree is shown in the increased prices secured by the producers of crude petroleum."

TAFT IS SATISFIED WITH OWN RECORD

Issues Long Statement and Predicts Reelection in November

BEVERLY, Mass., Oct. 20.—President Taft tonight issued a statement predicting Republican victory next month. The president reviews business conditions which he says are unprecedentedly prosperous and asserts the belief that sober judgment of the voters will continue present conditions. The statement reads in part:

"Fifty-two years ago seceders from the union thought they were facing a divided north, and would win an easy victory. There had been division among the loyal people, but all united in face of the common danger. Then it was said by hostile critics that the ship of state was drifting. It drifted—yes, with Lincoln at the helm from the reefs of secession and slavery into the placid waters of union and liberty.

"Under Lincoln's successors it has sailed on, propelled by the winds of prosperity, save when it voyage has been halted by just such a visitation of storm and stress, of torn protection sails and broken business bulkheads, as we are now threatened with, should Baltimore supplant Chicago, which it did not in 1860, and will not in 1912.

Says Democrats Have Been Taught.

"The Republican party has had a difficult, if unsuccessful task in teaching the Democracy its mistakes, so far as it has been taught, but somehow the obstinate pupil comes forward every four years to be taught again.

"I am glad to say, however, that many Democrats have learned their lesson well and are refusing to leave the firm ground of prosperity for the quagmire of business disruption, trade depression and commercial and industrial depletion. From all parts of the country assurances are coming that the Democrats intend to vote for the Republican candidates and a continuance of prosperous business conditions and against the program of economic confusion and socialistic subversion of our institutions supported by the Democratic candidates and their allies. Democratic workingmen refuse to be led from the factory and good wages of 1912 back to the Democratic hard times of 1893-97.

"Democratic business men feel the same way. They know that when industries languish their business languishes too. Drifting, well let me glance at some of the drift. Our home market has drifted from $7,000,000,000 in 1870 to $33,000,000,000—not a bad drift that. And it is this magnificent home market without equal in the past or present, that Democrats propose to dismember and disorganize and invite every nation in the world to prey upon, while those same nations keep the barriers to their own markets just as high as they please.

Refers to Foreign Trade.

"Then look at our foreign trade. A favorite Democratic argument is that Republicans build up and cultivate the home market at the expense of our foreign commerce, when the fact is that the growth of foreign trade has almost kept proportionate pace with the domestic—from $1,000,000,000 in 1870 to $4,000,000,000 in 1912.

"Our exports for the last year amounted to $2,170,319,368 of which $674,302,903 were manufactures ready for consumption, the largest export trade and the largest proportion of manufactures ready for consumption the country has ever known.

"As we come nearer to the day of election it is to be expected that the intelligent voter will appreciate more keenly the responsibility which attaches to his ballot. In national elections at least, the great majority like to feel that they are voting for a candidate who has a chance of success. It is obvious that either the Republican or the Democratic nominees will be elected, and not to vote for the Republican candidates is in effect to support their Democrat opponents and the Democratic platform of a 'tariff revenue only' freighted with dire consequences for the country, now busy and prosperous under Republican rule.

"It remains to be seen how many Republicans are willing to assist in completing the demoralization of the Republican party and handing the reins of government over to the Democrats, to gratify mere desire for revenge. I believe that the Republican party will be found, as a whole, too patriotic, too loyal to its principles and its traditions, too just in its attitude toward public servants, whom it has entrusted with duties faithfully performed, to commit hari kari in the form and for the objects indicated."

THE WHY OF HOLES IN CHEESE

From the New York Evening Post.

Why holes in cheese? What makes them? and what do they contain? Exhaustive research alone can solve this tangle, but it is believed that the investigation reported in Bureau of Animal Industry Bulletin No. 151, bearing the title, "The Gases of Emmenthal Cheese," has provided both a clearer definition of the problem and a sound basis of fact.

The so-called "eyes" in Swiss cheese are, as is well known, its most prominent characteristic, and its commercial value is largely dependent upon the proper size and spacing of these eyes. While the hole is not the whole of it, much depreciation in value of this popular variety of cheese, in both domestic and foreign kinds, is known to exist because of defects in eye formation. Hence, to the biological chemist, their formation is a fascinating subject, and to the cheese maker a matter of great importance. In certain districts the dealers rely almost entirely upon these features, and, shortly after the eyes have reached their proper development, relieve the maker of further care. Therefore, the American makers of Swiss cheese are unable to attend to their cheeses in that mellowed old age upon which so much of the fine flavor of a true Emmenthal cheese depends. Although this quick marketing may be deprecated, it nevertheless raises the relative importance and adds significance to whatever knowledge can be gained concerning the process of eye formation.

Experimental work described in bulletin, which can be secured from the secretary of agriculture, consists the chemical contents of these eyes, the gases of which are immediately concerned in the process of their formation, and offers the following conclusions:

The gases of normal "eyes" in Emmenthal cheese are exclusively carbon dioxid and nitrogen, and of these two the carbon dioxid is of significance. The nitrogen accompanying the carbon dioxid in normal eyes is that which originally occluded in the curd at the time of manufacture. There sometimes occurs during the initial fermentation an evolution of gas characterized by the presence of hydrogen, which is believed to be due to the gas fermentation of sugar. The hydrogen from such an initial fermentation sometimes linger to contaminate the gas of normal eyes. The two fermentations are distinct and are characterized by their gaseous products, of which one is detrimental, the other the demanded of a good Emmenthal cheese.

High oxygen-absorbing power, combined with low permeability of the cheese to air, render the interior of thoroughly anaerobic, and consequently favorable to the growth of anaerobic bacteria. A comparison between the amount of carbon dioxid evolved and the total volatile fatty acids shows that the activity of the propionic bacteria of Von Freudenreich and Jensen is not sufficient to account for all the carbon dioxid found.

It was found that cheese was capable of retaining a very large amount of carbon dioxid. The possibility is suggested that there are two phases in the formation of normal eyes, a saturation of the body with carbon dioxid and an inflation of eyes; and the bearing of this hypothesis on the practice of gas by a specific cause discussed.

NEW YORK'S DOUBLE-DECK STEPLESS STREET

From Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The stepless street car, introduced in New York for the comfort of hobble skirt wearers, has now been followed by a double-decked car of the same type, which has seating accommodations for 88 passengers, and a carrying capacity of 171. The new car, recently placed in service, will be the forerunner of many others of the same type if it proves practicable.

Financial Review

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The past week the stock market was governed to unusual extent by conditions across the water. Settlement of the war between Italy and Turkey was almost immediately followed by the long dreaded struggle between the Ottoman empire and the Balkan states, with fears in various quarters that the conflict might involve one or more of the great powers.

There was no renewal of the heavy liquidation on the preceding week, but foreign exchanges exhibited unsettlement.

It is pointed out that the strength of our securities compared with the huge shrinkage in values of numerous European issues is bound to call renewed attention to the stability of and inherent potentialities of "Americans" with a resultant increase of demand.

Trading here was only moderately large with the undertone often heavy. More than a proportionate amount of the daily business was in industrials, to the relative neglect of representative railroad stocks. United States Steel was most conspicuous of the leading industrials, and Amalgamated Copper rose to a level approaching its recent best on announcement of the dividend increase from four to six per cent, after which it fell back slightly on realizing sales.

Reports from the more important railroad centers show that the leading transportation companies are taxed beyond capacity by the enormous tonnages. Shortage of equipment is becoming acute.

Iron and Steel

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Activity continued in all lines of steel products last week with further advances in prices, if there was a decrease in the volume of business in pig iron.

The railroads gave the greatest support to the mills, being responsible for orders for 450,000 tons of finished products. The rail contracts alone aggregated 242,000 tons, including 100,000 tons for the Illinois Central, 50,000 for the Union Pacific and other Harriman lines, 90,000 tons for the Louisville & Nashville, 5,000 more for the St. Paul and 25,000 tons for several roads in the southwest. The Pennsylvania is understood to have distributed additional rail orders for new construction, specifications having been completed for 200,000 tons.

Car orders aggregated more than 14,000, while locomotive shops reported orders for 167 engines, including 60 for the Northern Pacific.

FEDERALS REVOLT

his forces and others are too much in sympathy with the cause to offer him battle. At least, he said, he does not expect a clash with the federals today or tomorrow.

The revolutionists now hold all the strategic points within the city with 1,000 seasoned soldiers, who have deserted to the Diaz banner, and several hundred volunteers. The federal troops occupy a position 10 miles beyond the outskirts of the city, thereby cutting off communication with the interior.

Foreigners in the city are anxiously looking forward to the arrival of the United States cruiser Des Moines and another American gunboat, which are expected any moment. A German warship is expected to join the foreign vessels in the harbor. The French, Portuguese, Spanish, Italian and British consuls, realizing the gravity of the situation, have urgently cabled their governments to send gunboats.

Foreigners Ready to Leave.

After a conference with the federal commanders outside the city, Generals Balctan and Valdez, during which the extreme peril of the situation to the foreigners in Vera Cruz was discussed, the consul returned to the city. General Valdez informed the consuls that he would notify them tomorrow, whether conditions warranted a hasty departure of all foreigners from Vera Cruz.

The consuls again will confer with the federal commanders outside the city with a view to averting hostilities and to guarding of foreign interests. A local hospital corps was organized today and arrangements made for trains to carry noncombatants out of the city in case of a bombardment by the federals.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—The Mexican government expressed confidence tonight that the administration at Washington had no intention to restrict efforts to retake Vera Cruz, even though it should become necessary to bombard the port.

Ernesto Madero, minister of finance and uncle of the president, said he had received a telegram from Washington to the effect that Mexico was free to use whatever means it deemed necessary. Noncombatants have been given notice that an attack is likely between midnight and tomorrow morning.

It is understood the Mexican government has made inquiries regarding the attitude of the United States should the federals attack Vera Cruz in view of a protest made by the foreign consuls in that city against such a step. The administration is confident the revolt quickly will be suppressed. President Madero said today that it was not spreading but was confined to Vera Cruz and Tuxpam.

Rebel Recruits.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 20.—Rebel troops recruited and armed on American soil have begun to cross into Mexico. A group of 50 men entered late today at Lelea, N. M., a few miles west of El Paso. Shortly after, General E. Z. Steever dispatched two troops of the second cavalry to march in all haste along the New Mexico border. Organization of other bands at various points on the border is reported.

Several hundred rebel troops have moved to the river just west of Juarez. Their campfires may be seen from the American side near El Paso. Ten rebels composing a scouting party approached so close to Juarez late tonight that they were captured by federal outposts.

Recent activity of rebel representatives here is believed to have some connection with the anticipated attack on Juarez. It is said that the newly formed Felix Diaz junta here is working independently of the old organization of the Orozco rebels, but that any troops sent over the line near El Paso will work in conjunction with Salazar's forces threatening Juarez.

The factories for cheese and butter in Canada are, for the most part, cooperative.

GIVES UP HER $3,000 SALARY FOR HUSBAND.

Miss Margaret Valentine Kelly, who as assistant director of the United States mint, was Uncle Sam's highest salaried woman employe, has resigned her position to make preparations for her coming marriage to Major Robert Callan of the Coast artillery. Miss Kelly was paid $3,000 a year for her services.

SALAZAR THREATENS ATTACK ON JUAREZ

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 20.—"I understand you have a new pair of field glasses, and I am coming after them," was the message received early today by Gen. Tracy Aubert, federal commander at Juarez, from Diez Salazar, the rebel general, whose forces are surrounding the Mexican border town. The federal commander is said to have lost his binoculars in the recent battle of Villa Lopez, and that the glasses were found by Salazar.

Hearing of the threatened attack on Juarez, Attorney Gomez Robelo, revolutionary representative here, at once sent a message to Salazar warning the rebel chief not to attack Juarez under any circumstances for fear of arousing difficulties with the United States. Juarez was the scene of the final battle of the Madero revolution, when bullets showered over the American city of El Paso. A board of army officers appointed by congress to investigate the claims of those injured on American soil during the battle of Juarez is at present engaged in an investigation here. It was Robelo's idea to avoid any repetition of danger to Americans on American soil.

A portion of the rebel forces late in the day moved to the Rio Grande opposite the El Paso smelter and within three miles of Juarez. They came from Fauche, 10 miles to the south of Juarez. The strength of the rebel forces is not definitely known, but should not exceed 500 men. Juarez is defended by just 563 federals, all but 152 of whom were recently forced into service, and it is believed cannot be relied upon. It is said there is no artillery in town, all having been removed by General Huerta when he was recalled to Mexico City. Money in Juarez banks was removed to the American side, but this afternoon found a large crowd of American sightseers, while the natives were entertained with a bull fight.

AVENUES OF NEWS ARE CLOSED IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—With every news avenue closed the city is a prey to all sorts of rumors. There is a growing tension of expectancy among all the better element. No news has been permitted to leak from the government offices, where the chiefs refuse to talk and have informed subordinates that they will be severely punished should they give out information.

Heavier patrols than ever cover the city nightly. A sensational rumor current was that 450 members of the pyrotechnic force, who volunteered for service and sent to the front, have deserted.

There appears to be a growing feeling here that General Felix Diaz is jeopardizing his chances of success by dilatory methods, instead of pushing his first advantage to advancing. The American embassy is protesting against the censorship in Vera Cruz of messages to that department. The embassy has instructed the consul at Vera Cruz, William W. Canada, to intimate to General Diaz that such business must not be delayed.

It is reported that the United States cruiser Cleveland will proceed from Nicaragua shortly to visit west coast ports.

General Felix Diaz, in a telegram to a newspaper here, says his future plans depend on the attitude of the army. He declares that he is not guided by personal ambition. He says the contending factions reconciled as the result of the new movement, he shall call elections in which he pledges his honor not to permit his name to be offered. He adds that he will not accept candidacy for any public office, but will uphold the person elected fairly who does not owe his elevation to a moment of madness, as in the present case of Madero.

Diaz said he had appropriated only funds intended for the payment of troops and public employes.

The government announces its intention to form a division of 10,000 men under General Huerta for the protection of the capital. General Blanquet's arrival has been delayed on account of the activity of rebels in the Torreon district.

NONINTERVENTION TO BE POLICY OF GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The attitude of the United States toward Mexico is undisturbed by the Diaz revolution, and, despite the gravity with which officials here regard the latest uprising, it is the intention of this government to adhere strictly to its announced policy of noninterference.

Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson on his way back to his post at Mexico City, conferred today with Assistant Secretary Adee and before leaving Washington will confer with Secretary Knox. It is known here that the Madero government is planning an active campaign against Diaz, who is said to be acting in the interest of his uncle, Porfirio Diaz, the exiled president.

The warnings of this government that Americans and their interests must be protected, will be obeyed.

Ambassador Wilson slept several hours today at the state department, going over the latest advices from Mexico and in conference with officials. It is said the presence at Vera Cruz of the cruiser Des Moines and the prospect that, in a day or two, the cruiser Tacoma also will arrive in Vera Cruz harbor, should not be taken as indicative of this government's intention to become a party to Mexico's internal difficulties.

Assurances have been given that the mission of the vessels to Vera Cruz is purely humanitarian and precautionary; that their visit is in no way political but for the sole purpose of affording protection and refuge to such Americans and other foreigners who may need such assistance.

It was said at the state department that no definite news of actual conflict between the opposing forces has been received, and that there was nothing to indicate when a battle might be expected. Ambassador Wilson early this morning will call up for consideration with Secretary Knox the claim of this government against Mexico on account of losses sustained by Americans in the operation of revolutionary forces.

RICHARD SYKES DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

DENVER, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Richard Sykes of London, England, who, as of it is about 1,000 miles off the Atlantic ocean, is expected to receive a wireless message telling her that her husband, Richard Sykes, aged 49, is dead, in this city. He succumbed to pneumonia today.

Mrs Sykes sailed from Liverpool last Friday, in response to a cablegram sent from Denver, that her husband was dangerously ill. She replied that she was leaving London and would sail Friday. The address was sent immediately following her England's news.

Sykes was socially prominent here and was one of the best known horsemen in Colorado.

court to draw upon the state treasury for funds without control from some other state authority, without limitation of funds so drawn. He also objected to the articles in the amendment which limits the factors to be taken into consideration in determining the rate of dividends and their reasonableness.

Street's Arguments.

In replying to the arguments presented by Mr. Smith, Mr. Street made the statement that the proposed amendment meets with the approval of the secretary of the Kansas public utilities commission, of Max Thelen, attorney for the California commission and author of the California act, that the amendment is backed by the Denver real estate exchange, the Denver business men's association and large leading daily papers of Denver.

Mr. Street answered the argument of Mr. Smith that the proposed amendment would drive money from the state by saying that there is nothing in the bill to cause capital to fear that it would not earn reasonable interest on the money actually invested. The requirement that no person should become a member of the commission who had held public utilities securities within the last five years will, in the judgment of the authors of the amendment, argued Mr. Street, increase its efficiency rather than hamper it.

"The clause allowing money to be drawn from the state treasury was copied from the New York law," said Mr. Street, "which is regarded as one of the best public utility laws in the nation."

"The basis for using fair rates, which was objected to by Mr. Smith, will tend only to eliminate the water from the various utility corporations," continued Mr. Street, "and will not restrict the earning power on the money actually invested."

At the conclusion of the noon recess next week the headless ballot bill and the measure providing for an eight-hour day in mines, smelters, etc., will be taken up.

THREE DEAD BECAUSE OF AFFRONT TO WOMAN

EUREKA, Cal., Oct. 20.—To avenge an alleged affront to a woman, George Clark of this city shot and killed Mrs. Charles Baxter today, mortally wounded her husband and then shot himself. He will die.

The tragedy occurred at the quarry of the Hammond Engineering company near here, when Baxter refused to apologize for having refused to allow Aileen Shaw, a waitress whom he had discharged, to enter the cook house, where the Baxters were cooking. Clark entered the cook house at noon and told Baxter he had a friend outside whom he wanted to bring in for dinner. When Baxter learned it was Miss Shaw, he refused to allow her to enter, and Clark ate dinner alone, and then rejoined the girl, who was waiting without.

A short time later, Clark reentered the cook house, faced Baxter and demanded that he step outside and apologize to the girl. Baxter refused and Clark drew a revolver and shot him through the body. Mrs. Baxter ran toward the door, but was dropped by a bullet in her side and died in a few minutes.

Clark went to a nearby bunk house, where the girl sat on the steps waiting for him.

"I shot them for my little girl's sake," he said as he embraced her.

They were standing silently on the steps of the bunk house when a woman came from the cook shack and told them Mrs. Baxter was dead. Clark drew his revolver and pressed the muzzle against his breast. The young woman wrenched it from his hand, but a few moments later he secured another weapon and shot himself in the right breast. The bullet passed through his body, and physicians at the Eureka hospital, where he and Baxter were taken, say both will die.

KILLED WHEN THROWN FROM RUNAWAY HORSE

PUEBLO, Oct. 20.—J. Lopez, the son-in-law of John Chavez, an old-time resident of Avondale, located a short distance east of Pueblo, was killed this afternoon when a horse he was riding fell. Lopez and a companion were racing the horses from a saloon on the outskirts of the town into Avondale when the horse fell. The man sustained a fracture at the base of the brain and his jaw bone broken and was injured internally.

FATALLY WOUNDED IN FIGHT OVER WOMAN

MONTE VISTA, Oct. 20. Jealous of the attentions Merch Kennedy is alleged to have paid to his employer, Mrs. Rob McNeill, the divorced husband of the latter got into an altercation with Kennedy today which ended in the latter being stabbed and probably fatally wounded. Kennedy was foreman on Mrs. McNeill's ranch. McNeill visited the ranch today and while it is not known definitely what passed between the men, it is alleged that McNeil first struck Kennedy over the head and later stabbed him. Kennedy is not expected to live.

ROCKEFELLER SUBPOENAED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Charles Bulkley, an attache of the house, has gone to New York with subpoenas for persons wanted before the money trust investigation committee. Among the subpoenas is said to be one for William Rockefeller.

GREEK NAVY SIGHTED

LONDON, Oct. 21. Eleven Greek ships, including the large armored cruiser Georgio Averoff, are reported off the Turkish island of Lesbos.

GIVES $150,000 FOR BIRDS

Mrs. Russell Sage has purchased Marsh Island, on the Gulf coast, southwest of New Orleans, and dedicated it as a guarded refuge for the migratory birds of America. At a cost of $150,000 the noted philanthropist has taken control of the most popular haunt of the southern market gunner and has given protection to the game birds that flock in millions to Marsh Island every winter. The island is about 18 miles long and nine miles wide. Mrs. Sage purchased it at the suggestion of Edward McIlhenny of Avery Island, La., who recently established a 15,000-acre bird refuge in Vermilion bay.

JOHNSON TAKES EASTERN DATES

Shooting of Colonel Roosevelt Causes Change in Campaign Plans

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Governor Johnson left here this afternoon for New York, where he will complete arrangements to fill Colonel Roosevelt's speaking dates in the east during the rest of the campaign, and to direct the fight. The complete itinerary has not been given out, but it will embrace New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Delaware and Pennsylvania. He will travel by special train.

Before leaving, the governor issued a statement directed to the citizens of California, explaining his reasons for returning to the east. It follows:

"My campaign in the east was concluded last night in Chicago, and my preparations had been made for departure today to arrive in our state Wednesday night. I had expected to devote the rest of the time before election to California.

Shooting Changes Plans.

"The attempted assassination of Colonel Roosevelt has completely altered all of our plans, and as the vice presidential candidate of the Progressive party, I have been asked so far as I am able to take the burden that Colonel Roosevelt was so ably and so bravely carrying and to continue the campaign until its close, as had been contemplated by him. I felt that it was my duty to return to my native state and I was very loath to remain longer absent, but my enlistment in this cause for which we strive was not for a day but for all time, and when the leader of that cause was suddenly stricken and I found him helpless here, it seemed to have fallen to me to bear part of his burden, and to continue the struggle as we had planned for him to do.

"Reluctantly, therefore, for there are many reasons for my return that may be readily understood, I have yielded to the request of the Progressives of the nation, and shall insofar as I am able, continue this great battle that means so much for humanity. The cause for which we strive popular rule and social and industrial justice—is so well understood in California that I feel it may be safely left to those who have made and won the fight there.

Will Continue the Fight.

"In the wider field of the nation the part has been mine in the last 60 days to preach our California doctrines, and in the remaining two weeks, the most critical period of the struggle, it has fallen to me to continue that work with added responsibility. I feel that the situation will thoroughly be appreciated by all of those in our great state of achievement who have been in sympathy with the work we have there done."

Doubt as to the application of a California law providing that a governor leaving the state for more than 60 days automatically loses his office, was dispelled in Governor Johnson's mind by the receipt of an opinion from Attorney-General Webb of California.

This opinion was that a legislative resolution, passed before the governor had been thought of as a vice presidential candidate giving him permission to use his discretion about absenting himself from the state, was effective and that he would be safe in remaining away.

OCEAN TO OCEAN HIGHWAY

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

INDIANAPOLIS—A stone national highway from New York to San Francisco, to be completed by January 1, 1915, in time for the Panama exposition, is the dream of the motor car fraternity.

The plan provides for the setting aside of 1 per cent of its gross receipts for one year by every motor car and sundry manufacturing concern which participates. The amount is to be paid either in three yearly installments of one-third of 1 per cent each, or five yearly installments of one-fifth of 1 per cent each. No deviation is to be made from this plan.

Already practically every Indianapolis manufacturer has signified his intention of acceding to the agreement, and at a recent dinner in Indianapolis more than $300,000 was assured in 27 minutes.

Owing to its larger output Detroit promises to outdo Indianapolis. The city by the lake has begun activities, and large additions to the purse are sure to be forthcoming.

An appropriation of $10,000,000 will provide $5,000 for each mile of the roadway, to be spent for materials, which will be delivered on the ground out of the general fund.

The road proper is to be constructed by the counties through which it passes, under direction of war department engineers. The course of the roadway will be determined by a national commission of experts.

Simultaneously with activities in Detroit and Indianapolis work will be carried on among the manufacturers in Cleveland, Buffalo, New York and other important motor car centers.

The gross expense of the road, it is said, will be in the neighborhood of $25,000,000, and the promoters assert that more than 25,000 motor cars will run over it to the Panama exposition.

A SALARIED CAT

From the Springfield Republican.

The only salaried cat in the United States, so far as one can find out, has just died in New Orleans, and was given a proper burial. This was Old Tom, who for years had been carried on the board of trade as official rat catcher, with a salary of 10 cents a day, and was never discharged, though in his later years he was as reluctant as other veteran office-holders to get busy. But he had no enemies except of the feline sort, and his framed picture is to adorn the directors' room at the board of trade.

WHERE ROOSEVELT WAS SHOT BY JOHN SCHRANK

This photograph of Colonel Roosevelt shows him wearin the heavy army overcoat in which he was shot. The circle shows where the bullet entered, passing through a packet of manuscript he carried in an inner pocket of his inside coat. The thickness of the overcoat and manuscript probably saved Colonel Roosevelt's life. He leaves Chicago today for Oyster Bay.

the strict regime of the physicians for a week or 10 days. Colonel Roosevelt believes, however, that he will be able to speak in Madison Square Garden, New York, on October 30. He hopes to make one speech to summarize all of his reasons for seeking support for the Progressive party, and has begun to plan an address which he can deliver in 20 minutes.

"I am going to the meeting, anyway," he said, "even if I can speak only three words."

WOODMEN TRAIN WRECKED

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 20.—Forty-nine passengers were injured, none seriously, when a Woodmen of the World excursion train on the Illinois Central was wrecked today. A broken rail is believed to have derailed the four coaches that went into a ditch.

FRENCH AVIATOR KILLED

BORDEAUX, Oct. 20.—A French aviator, Amedee Lacour, was killed today while giving an exhibition of fancy flying at Mussidon. He fell 500 feet.

BALLOON EXPLODES; 2 DEAD

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—A balloon exploded while sailing through a thunderstorm over Grossenheim today. The two occupants, Lieutenant Stichler and Engineer Goehricke, were killed.

MARSHALL IN CALIFORNIA

OGDEN, Utah, Oct. 20.—Gov. Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, Democratic candidate for vice president, passed through here today en route to San Francisco, where he will select a site for the Indiana state building at the Panama-Pacific exposition. Governor Marshall also is scheduled to deliver several speeches in the interest of his party while on the Pacific coast.

SUFFERS FROM STROKE

PUEBLO, Oct. 20.—With face and body distorted almost beyond recognition, resulting from a stroke of apoplexy, Barnes Evans, former commissioner of Pueblo county and a candidate for that office on the Progressive party ticket, was found unconscious in West Second street, where he had fallen today. It is believed he cannot recover.

FEW FLIES IN BOHEMIA

From Consul J. I. Brittain, Prague, Austria.

This consulate has from time to time received letters from manufacturers of various sorts of fly paper in the United States who wish to extend their trade. These letters have been fully answered, giving the names and addresses of local dealers, and also the various sorts of American and other fly paper sold here.

It is not possible to work up an extensive trade in Bohemia, as there are not sufficient flies to exterminate. In most of the dining rooms, during the course of a meal, perhaps three or four flies appear during the season. In restaurants there are very few flies.

Here screen doors to keep out flies and other insects are unknown. The buildings are all constructed of brick, stone, or concrete. The docks along the river front are of granite. The pavements and sidewalks are made of granite blocks. There are no wooden sidewalks, stairways or buildings in the city. Decayed vegetable or animal matter is not openly exposed to flies, and the streets are frequently cleaned during each day. There are no open drains in the city to attract and breed flies. I can only ascribe the absence of flies to the lack of breeding places.

It is estimated that more than $12,000,000 has been spent in a single year on patent medicines in Great Britain, which represents a sum sufficient to maintain 40,000 hospital or sanitarium beds.

INDEPENDENT CONCERNS SAY STANDARD OIL COMPANY MONOPOLY HAS BEEN DISSOLVED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—To sustain his contention that the decree dissolving the Standard Oil company gave the relief sought by the antitrust suit against the corporation, Attorney General Wickersham today issued a statement revealing some of the results of an inquiry he has been making into conditions in the oil industry.

The statement, intended as a further reply to criticisms that such decrees as that of the Standard Oil benefited the trusts, was built around a letter, optimistic as to present conditions, which the attorney general recently received from C. D. Chamberlain, secretary and general counsel of the National Petroleum association. That organization is composed of a large number of independent refining companies embracing, according to the attorney general, practically all the companies not connected with the Standard Oil.

Declares Conditions Are Better.

Attorney General Wickersham gave out with his statement a copy of a letter from Mr. Chamberlain who wrote that while the full effect of the decree cannot yet be judged, independents today have more unrestricted and uncontrolled opportunity to carry on their business without unfair, secret and oppressive competition on the part of one great rival than they have enjoyed for years past."

Mr. Wickersham said written to Mr. Chamberlain, the statement said, for accurate information as to present conditions contrasted with those existing prior to the supreme court's decision in May, 1911.

Mr. Chamberlain pointed out that it was difficult to make such a comparison, "because the effect of the government's prosecution of the Standard Oil combination began practically with the filing of that suit in November, 1906; and from that date the practices of the Standard Oil combination in large measure ceased to be predatory, and the independent dealers began to have a chance to live."

Rebate System Broken Up.

"This condition," Mr. Chamberlain added, "continuously improved during the pendency of the government's suit, and that improvement has continued since the decree of dissolution so that it may be stated that the giving of rebates upon which the Standard Oil monopoly was built up, has ceased, preferential rates are few and far between, and many other unethical commercial practices have become so unfrequent as hardly to cause complaint.

"In 1906 returns from the oil industry show that the Standard Oil combination controlled about 84 per cent of the entire oil business of the United States and the remaining 16 per cent was distributed among the independent companies. The most accurate data which I have been able to secure show that at present the independent companies control 34 per cent, exclusive of the mine, where I am informed the independents control nearly 50 per cent.

"The only practical result of the government's prosecution and decree is shown in the increased prices secured by the producers of crude petroleum."

TAFT IS SATISFIED WITH OWN RECORD

Issues Long Statement and Predicts Reelection in November

BEVERLY, Mass., Oct. 20.—President Taft tonight issued a statement predicting Republican victory next month. The president reviews business conditions which he says are unprecedentedly prosperous and asserts the belief that sober judgment of the voters will continue present conditions. The statement reads in part:

"Fifty-two years ago seceders from the union thought they were facing a divided north and would win an easy victory. There had been division among the loyal people, but all united in face of the common danger. Then it was said by hostile critics that the ship of state was drifting. It drifted—yes, with Lincoln at the helm from the reefs of secession and slavery into the placid waters of union and liberty.

"Under Lincoln's successors it has sailed on, propelled by the winds of prosperity, save when it voyage has been halted by just such a visitation of storm and stress, of torn protection sails and broken business bulkheads, as we are now threatened with, should Baltimore supplant Chicago, which it did not in 1860, and will not in 1912.

Says Democrats Have Been Taught.

"The Republican party has had a difficult, if unsuccessful task in teaching the Democracy its mistakes, so far as it has been taught, but somehow the obstinate pupil comes forward every four years to be taught again.

"I am glad to say, however, that many Democrats have learned their lesson well and are refusing to leave the firm ground of prosperity for the quagmire of business disruption, trade depression and commercial and industrial depletion. From all parts of the country assurances are coming that the Democrats intend to vote for the Republican candidates and a continuance of prosperous business conditions and against the program of economic confusion and socialistic subversion of our institutions supported by the Democratic candidates and their allies. Democratic workingmen refuse to be led from the factory and good wages of 1912 back to the Democratic hard times of 1893-97.

"Democratic business men feel the same way. They know that when industries languish their business languishes too. Drifting, well let me glance at some of the drift. Our home market has drifted from $7,000,000,000 in 1870 to $33,000,000,000—not a bad drift that. And it is this magnificent home market without equal in the past or present, that Democrats propose to dismember and disorganize and invite every nation in the world to prey upon, while those same nations keep the barriers to their own markets just as high as they please.

Refers to Foreign Trade.

"Then look at our foreign trade. A favorite Democratic argument is that Republicans build up and cultivate the home market at the expense of our foreign commerce, when the fact is that the growth of foreign trade has almost kept proportionate pace with the domestic—from $1,000,000,000 in 1870 to $4,000,000,000 in 1912.

"Our exports for the last year amounted to $2,170,319,368 of which $674,302,903 were manufactures ready for consumption, the largest export trade and the largest proportion of manufactures ready for consumption the country has ever known.

"As we come nearer to the day of election it is to be expected that the intelligent voter will appreciate more keenly the responsibility which attaches to his ballot. In national elections at least, the great majority like to feel that they are voting for a candidate who has a chance of success. It is obvious that either the Republican or the Democratic nominees will be elected, and not to vote for the Republican candidates is in effect to support their Democrat opponents and the Democratic platform of a 'tariff revenue only' freighted with dire consequences for the country, now busy and prosperous under Republican rule.

"It remains to be seen how many Republicans are willing to assist in completing the demoralization of the Republican party and handing the reins of government over to the Democrats, to gratify mere desire for revenge. I believe that the Republican party will be found, as a whole, too patriotic, too loyal to its principles and its traditions, too just in its attitude toward public servants, whom it has entrusted with duties faithfully performed, to commit hari kari in the form and for the objects indicated."

THE WHY OF HOLES IN CHEESE

From the New York Evening Post.

"Why holes in cheese? What makes them? and what do they contain? Exhaustive research alone can solve this tangle, but it is believed that the investigation reported in Bureau of Animal Industry Bulletin No. 151, bearing the title, "The Gases of Emmenthal Cheese," has provided both a clearer definition of the problem and a sound basis of fact.

The so-called "eyes" in Swiss cheese are, as is well known, its most prominent characteristic, and its commercial value is largely dependent upon the proper size and spacing of these eyes. While the hole is not the whole of it, much depreciation in value of this popular variety of cheese, in both domestic and foreign kinds, is known to exist because of defects in eye formation. Hence, to the biological chemist, their formation is a fascinating subject, and to the cheese maker a matter of great importance. In certain districts the dealers rely almost entirely upon these features, and, shortly after the eyes have reached their proper development, relieve the maker of further care. Therefore, the American makers of Swiss cheese are unable to attend to their cheeses in that mellowed old age upon which so much of the fine flavor of a true Emmenthal cheese depends. Although this quick marketing may be deprecated, it nevertheless raises the relative importance and adds significance to whatever knowledge can be gained conc the process of eye formation.

Experimental work described i bulletin, which can be secured the secretary of agriculture, co the chemical contents of these the gases, of which are immed concerned in the process of the mation, and offers the followin clusions:

The gases of normal "eyes" i menthal cheese are exclusively dioxid and nitrogen, and of thes the carbon dioxid is of signifi The nitrogen accompanying the dioxid in normal eyes is that originally occluded in the curd time of manufacture. There times occurs during the initial fe tation an evolution of gas char ized by the presence of hydrogen is believed to be due to the g fermentation of sugar. The hyd from such an initial fermentatio sometimes linger to contaminat gas of normal eyes. The two fe tations are distinct and are char ized by their gaseous products. one is detrimental, the other th manded of a good Emmenthal c

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The past week the stock market was governed to unusual extent by conditions across the water. Settlement of the war between Italy and Turkey was almost immediately followed by the long deferred struggle between the Ottoman empire and the Balkan states, with fears in various quarters that the conflict might involve one or more of the great powers.

There was no renewal of the heavy liquidation on the preceding week, but foreign exchanges exhibited unsettlement.

It is pointed out that the strength of our securities compared with the large shrinkage in values of numerous European issues is bound to call renewed attention to the stability of and inherent potentialities of "Americans" with a resultant increase of demand.

Trading here was only moderately large, with the undertone often irregular. More than a proportionate amount of the daily business was in industrials, to the relative neglect of representative railroad stocks. United States Steel was most conspicuous of the leading industrials, and Amalgamated Copper rose to a level approaching its recent best on announcement of the dividend increase from four to six per cent, after which it fell back slightly on realizing sales.

Reports from the more important railroad centers show that the leading transportation companies are taxed beyond capacity by the enormous tonnages. Shortage of equipment is becoming acute.

Iron and Steel

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Activity continued in all lines of steel products last week with further advances in prices, but there was a decrease in the volume of business in pig iron.

The railroads gave the greatest support to the mills, being responsible for orders for 250,000 tons of finished products. The mill contracts aggregated 242,000 tons, including 50,000 tons for the Illinois Central, 40,000 for the Union Pacific and other Harriman lines, 30,000 tons for the Louisville & Nashville, 5,000 tons for the St. Paul and 25,000 tons for several roads in the southwest. The Pennsylvania is understood to have distributed additional rail orders for new construction, specifications having been completed for 200,000 tons.

Car orders aggregated more than 14,000, while locomotive shops reported orders for 167 engines, including 68 for the Northern Pacific.

his forces and others are too much in sympathy with the cause to offer him battle. At least, he said, he does not expect a clash with the federals today or tomorrow.

The revolutionists now hold all the strategic points within the city with 1,000 seasoned soldiers, who have deserted to the Diaz banner, and several hundred volunteers. The federal troops occupy a position 10 miles beyond the outskirts of the city, thereby cutting off communication with the interior.

Foreigners in the city are anxiously looking forward to the arrival of the United States cruiser Des Moines and another American gunboat, which are expected any moment. A German warship is expected to join the foreign vessels in the harbor. The French, Portuguese, Spanish, Italian and British consuls, realizing the gravity of the situation, have urgently cabled their governments to send gunboats.

Foreigners Ready to Leave.

After a conference with the federal commanders outside the city, Generals Baleran and Valdez, during which the extreme peril of the situation to the foreigners in Vera Cruz was discussed, the consul returned to the city. General Valdez informed the consuls that he would notify them tomorrow whether conditions warranted a hasty departure of all foreigners from Vera Cruz.

The consuls again will confer with the federal commanders outside the city with a view to averting hostilities and to guarding of foreign interests. A local hospital corps was organized today and arrangements made for trains to carry noncombatants out of the city in case of a bombardment by the federals.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—The Mexican government expressed confidence tonight that the administration at Washington had no intention to restrict efforts to retake Vera Cruz, even though it should become necessary to bombard the port.

Ernesto Madero, minister of finance and uncle of the president, said he had received a telegram from Washington to the effect that Mexico was free to use whatever means it deemed necessary. Noncombatants have been given notice that an attack is likely between midnight and tomorrow morning.

It is understood the Mexican government has made inquiries regarding the attitude of the United States should the federals attack Vera Cruz in view of a protest made by the foreign consuls in that city against such a step. The Administration is confident the revolt quickly will be suppressed. President Madero said today that it was not spreading but was confined to Vera Cruz and Tuxpam.

Rebel Recruits.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 20.—Rebel troops recruited and armed on American soil have begun to cross into Mexico. A group of 50 men entered late today at Lelea, N. M., a few miles west of El Paso. Shortly after, General E. Z. Steever dispatched two troops of the second cavalry to march in all haste along the New Mexico border. Organization of other bands at various points on the border is reported.

Several hundred rebel troops have moved to the river just west of Juarez. Their camp-fires may be seen from the American side near El Paso. Ten rebels composing a scouting party approached so close to Juarez late tonight that they were captured by federal outposts.

Recent activity of rebel representatives here is believed to have some connection with the anticipated attack on Juarez. It is said that the newly formed Felix Diaz junta here is working independently of the old organization of the Orozco rebels, but that any troops sent over the line near El Paso will work in connection with Salazar's forces threatening Juarez.

The facilities for cross and lines in Canada are, for the most part, inoperative.

GIVES UP HER $3,000 SALARY FOR HUSBAND.

Miss Margaret Valentine Kelly, who as assistant director of the United States mint, was Uncle Sam's highest salaried woman employe, has resigned her position to make preparations for her coming marriage to Major Dabney Callan of the Coast artillery. Miss Kelly was paid $3,000 a year for her services.

SALAZAR THREATENS ATTACK ON JUAREZ

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 20.—I understand you have a pair of field glasses, and I am coming after them," was the message received early today by Gen. Tiburcio Aubert, federal commander at Juarez, from Inez Salazar, the rebel general, whose forces are surrounding the Mexican border town. The federal commander is said to have lost his binoculars in the recent battle of Villa Lopez, and that the glasses were found by Salazar.

Hearing of the threatened attack on Juarez, Attorney Gomez Robelo, revolutionary representative here, at once sent a message to Salazar warning the rebel chief not to attack Juarez under any circumstances for fear of arousing difficulties with the United States. Juarez was the scene of the final battle of the Madero revolution, when bullets showered over the American city of El Paso. A board of army officers appointed by Congress to investigate the claims of those injured on American soil during the battle of Juarez is at present engaged in an investigation here. It was Robelo's idea to avoid any repetition of damage to Americans on American soil.

A portion of the rebel forces late in the day moved to the Rio Grande opposite the El Paso smelter and within three miles of Juarez. They came from Pascue, 10 miles to the south of Juarez. The strength of the rebel forces is not definitely known, but should not exceed 500 men. Juarez is defended by just 563 federals, all but 152 of which were recently forced into service, and it is believed cannot be relied upon. It is said there is no artillery in town, all having been removed by General Huerta when he was recalled to Mexico City. Money in Juarez banks was removed to the American side, but this afternoon found a large crowd of American sightseers, while the natives were entertained with a bull fight.

AVENUES OF NEWS ARE CLOSED IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—With every news avenue closed the city is prey to all sorts of rumors. There is a growing tension of expectancy among all the better classes. No news has been permitted to leak from the government offices, where the chiefs remain in talk and have informed visitors that they will be sorry to disappoint should they give out information.

Heavier patrols than ever cover the city tonight. A sensational rumor current was that 450 members of the Hydrographic force, who volunteered for service and went to the front, have deserted.

There appears to be a growing feeling here that General Felix Diaz is jeopardizing his chances of success by dilatory methods, instead of availing of his first advantage by advancing. The American embassy is protesting against the censorship in Vera Cruz of messages to that department. The embassy has instructed the consul at Vera Cruz, William W. Canada, to intimate to General Diaz that such business must not be delayed.

It is reported that the United States cruiser Cleveland will proceed from Nicaragua shortly to visit west coast ports.

General Felix Diaz, in a telegram to a newspaper here, says his future plans depend on the attitude of the army. He declares that he is not guided by personal ambition, but with the contending factions reconciled as the result of the next movement, he shall call elections in which he pledges his honor not to permit his name to be offered. He adds that he will take every measure for any public office, but will uphold the first constitutional chief who does not owe his election to a moment of weakness, as in the present case of Madero.

Diaz said he had appealed for only funds intended for the movement of troops and public employes.

The government announces its intention to form a division of 10,000 men under General Huerta for the protection of the capital. General Blanquet's arrival has been delayed on account of the inability of cars in the Tuxpan district.

NONINTERVENTION TO BE POLICY OF GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The attitude of the United States toward Mexico is undisturbed by the Diaz revolution, and despite the gravity with which officials here regard the latest uprising, it is the intention of the government to adhere strictly to its announced policy of nonintervention.

Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, on his way back to his post at Mexico City, conferred today with Assistant Secretary Adee, and before leaving Washington will confer with Secretary Knox. It is feared here that the Madero government is planning an active campaign against Diaz, who is said to be getting in the interests of the uncle, Porfirio Diaz, the ex-president.

The attitude of this government and Americans and their interests must be protected, and it is believed.

Ambassador Wilson, on several hours' notice at the state department, going over the latest advices from Mexico and conferred with officials. It is said the presence of Vera Cruz of the cruiser Des Moines and the prospect that, in a day or two, the cruiser Tacoma should arrive in Vera Cruz harbor, should not be taken as indicative of the government's intention to become a party to Mexico's internal difficulties.

Assurances have been given that the hostility of the rebels to Vera Cruz [illegible] and foreigners and properties of that city will be safeguarded by the Federal government.

It was said at the state department that no definite news of actual conflict between the opposing forces had been received since Thursday. Hope was expressed that nothing would occur which might tend to cause the Mexican Congress to withdraw its protocol with Secretary Knox, the claims of this government against Mexico on account of losses sustained in America in the operation of revolutionary forces.

RICHARD SYKES DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

DENVER, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Richard Sykes, of London, England, who is sailing today on the Atlantic ocean, is expected to receive a wireless message to-day the fact that her husband, Richard Sykes, aged 50, is dead, in this city. He succumbed to pneumonia today.

Mrs. Sykes sailed from Liverpool last Friday, in response to a cablegram sent from Denver, that her husband was dangerously ill. She replied that she was leaving London and would sail Friday. The address was sent immediately to the [illegible] Sykes [illegible] prominent here and was one of the best known horsemen in Colorado.

court to draw upon the state treasury for funds without control from some other state authority, without limitation of funds so drawn. He also objected to the articles in the amendment which limits the factors to be taken into consideration in determining the rate of dividends and their reasonableness.

Street's Arguments.

In replying to the arguments presented by Mr. Smith, Mr. Street made the statement that the proposed amendment meets with the approval of the secretary of the Kansas public utilities commission, of Max Thelen, attorney for the California commission and author of the California act, that the amendment is backed by the Denver real estate exchange, the Denver business men's association and three leading daily papers of Denver.

Mr. Street answered the argument of Mr. Smith that the proposed amendment would drive money from the state by saying that there is nothing in the bill to cause capital to fear that it would not earn reasonable interest on the money actually invested. The proposition that no person should become a member of the commission who had held any utilities securities within the last two years will, in the judgment of the authors of the amendment, subject Mr. Street, because its effectiveness during business it.

"The clause allowing money to be drawn from the state treasury was copied from the New York law," said Mr. Street, "which is heralded as one of the best public utilities laws in the nation.

"The clause for fixing fair rates, which is objected to by Mr. Smith, is a fixed right to distribute the water from the various utility corporations," declares Mr. Street, "and will not restrict the legislature power on the money actually invested."

THREE DEAD BECAUSE OF AFFRONT TO WOMAN

EUREKA, Cal., Oct. 20.—To avenge an alleged affront to a woman, George Clark of this city shot and killed Mrs. Charles Baxter today, mortally wounded her husband and then shot himself. He will die.

The tragedy occurred at the quarry of the Hammond Engineering company, near here, when Baxter refused to apologize for having refused to allow Allison Shaw, a waitress whom he had discharged, to enter the cook house, where the Baxters were cooking. Clark entered the cook house at noon and told Baxter he had a friend outside whom he wanted to bring in for dinner. When Baxter learned it was Miss Shaw, he refused to allow her to enter and Clark ate dinner alone, and then reported the girl who was waiting without.

A short time later, Clark reentered the cook house, faced Baxter and demanded that he step outside and apologize to the girl. Baxter refused and Clark drew a revolver and shot him through the body. Mrs. Baxter ran toward the door, but was dropped by a bullet in her side and died in a few minutes.

Clark went to a nearby bunk house, where the girl sat on the steps waiting for him.

"I shot them for my little girl's sake," he said, as he embraced her.

They were standing silently on the steps of the bunk house when a woman came from the cook shack and told them Mrs. Baxter was dead. Clark drew his revolver and pressed the muzzle against his breast. The young woman wrenched it from his hand, but a few moments later he secured another weapon and shot himself in the right breast. The bullet passed through his body, and physicians at the Eureka hospital, where he and Baxter were taken, say both will die.

KILLED WHEN THROWN FROM RUNAWAY HORSE

PUEBLO, Oct. 20.—J. Lopez, the son-in-law of John Chavez, an old-time resident of Avondale, located a short distance east of Pueblo, was killed this afternoon when a horse he was riding fell. Lopez and a companion were racing the horses from a saloon on the outskirts of the town into Avondale when the horse fell. The man sustained a fracture at the base of the brain, and his jaw bone broken and was injured internally.

Of every hundred emigrants from Italy 80 are males.

THE MAN FOR PRESIDENT

PRESIDENT—TAFT is fond of saying that "this is a government of laws, not men." By this statement he means to indicate that the personality of the men who are responsible for the enforcement of laws should have no effect upon the manner of the execution of those laws.

There can be no enforcement of law, there can be no government, there can be no administration of any kind unless it be though men. This is a truism.

Another truism is the following: Men cannot divorce themselves from their personalities. Some men are easy-going, inert, inclined to let things take their course; others are forceful, strenuous, aggressive; still others are vacillating, undecided, confused. Although all may be equally honest and well-intentioned they will not, indeed, they are not able, to hold the same office in the same way.

It is impossible for men to suppress their personalities. The decisions of courts are supposed to be impersonal, but we know as a matter of fact that judges differ on identical propositions. Two Republicans, two Democrats, two Progressives elected upon the same platform with identical promises may make decidedly different executive officers. President Taft is wrong; this is not a government of law but a government of men working through law.

It is of importance that the voters recognize that this is a government of men; voters should and do recognize that it does make a difference who is elected to be President of the United States.

QUALITIES OF THE THREE CANDIDATES.

One of three candidates for president will be elected: Taft, Wilson, Roosevelt. President Taft was elected on a platform calling for downward revision of the tariff and supported a revision in the opposite direction; he has made his record; he has demonstrated that where there is a doubt in the interpretation of law or facts he resolves that doubt against the people and in favor of the interests; he is out of sympathy with the times. His chief argument for reelection is that crops are good!

Professor Wilson is a scholar, an honest man, a man with a good professional record. However, he is handicapped by his personality, his lack of grip on the imagination of the people, the reactionary forces that surround him in the Democratic party, such as Tammany and the Bourbon Democrats of the South, and by the fact that he is not a tried and experienced leader. Compared with Roosevelt or La Follette, Wilson is a novice.

Colonel Roosevelt is energetic, vigorous, outspoken; no one can be in doubt as to his position. He is honest, fearless, independent; if elected he and he only will be President; there can be no doubt of that. He has proved his capacity to be President of these United States by being President for seven years. These years were strenuous years; they were years in which the interests of the common man were remembered, they were years in which a new political conscience began to develop.

Colonel Roosevelt has been tried—he has not been found wanting. Therefore, we believe that he is the man who should be President of the United States for the next four years. Roosevelt's personality should be behind the law.

THE TARIFF IN A NUTSHELL

ONE of the criticisms made of Mr. Roosevelt in the present campaign is that he showed no interest in the tariff during his seven and one-half years in the White house and advanced no plans for relieving the people of unnecessary tariff burdens. Doubtless the best answer to this criticism is a list of the achievements of Mr. Roosevelt's administrations and of the important reforms which he sought to advance by seemingly tireless efforts. In view of these labors his supporters now say with force that no man can do everything in a limited period of years.

However, Mr. Roosevelt is today a tariff reformer with a definite program. His article on tariff revision in the Outlook is a clear exposition of the proper method of dealing with this difficult subject. That "the tariff to be levied should, as nearly as is scientifically possible, approximate the differential between the cost of production at home and abroad" is his view as to its proper proportions. Not only should it protect the wages of the workers, but it should secure for the workers a fair share of the profits—in other words, a living wage. Any protected industry which does not give a living wage, says Mr. Roosevelt, should cease to be a protected industry. This thesis is well worth the attention of the justice-loving American people.

Mr. Roosevelt expresses clearly the need for a nonpartisan tariff commission to investigate the cost of production at home and abroad, thus aiding Congress with scientific information on which to base tariff rates. The commission, he says truly, "should be large enough to cover all the different and widely varying branches of American industry." It should have ample powers to enable it to secure any needed information. Further, "it should examine into the wages and conditions of labor and life of the workmen in any industry, so as to insure our refusing protection to any industry unless the showing as regards the share labor receives therefrom is satisfactory." These words are well calculated to create consternation in certain highly protected industries that for many years have been influential in tariff-making councils at Washington.

It is, of course, the province of Congress to fix tariff rates, but the moral force of an efficient nonpartisan tariff commission, which would bring publicity to bear upon the work of framing tariff schedules, would be powerful in securing justice. The old logrolling abuses would be abolished by the adoption of the policy of revising only one tariff schedule at a time. Under this procedure the tariff would be practically taken out of politics.

ANOTHER STATEMENT ON TARIFF.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

When one writes a letter to a newspaper it is always pleasing to the writer to learn that some one has read it. It is still more pleasing when some one of opposite views answers it, and the acme of pleasure is reached when the latter is constrained to admit that the former's views are "probably correct." This "Fair Play" has done in the evening paper, and by so doing has shown that his assumed name is not a misnomer.

Fair Play thinks that my statement that the average increase on all kinds of cotton and woolen goods made by the Payne-Aldrich bill was 26.72 per cent should not be accepted without investigation. In the face of the assertions of the trusts to the contrary it is not singular that he should doubt it. The schedules were so changed, and the complexity so increased, by the changes from ad valorem to specific duties, that it required experts to make a comparison. Fortunately this was done by experts in the treasury department in a statement prepared for the senate finance committee. That report is before me. It gives the value of the imports for a year; the Dingley rate; the Aldrich rate, and the per cent of increase of the latter over the former, the ad valoremes of the Dingley bill being reduced to specifics. It shows that the duties on the various kinds of textile goods were increased from 11.20 per cent to 51.52 per cent, the average increase being 26.72 per cent.

Fair Play introduces an ex-senator to prove what I said, that Aldrich allowed the American Woolen association, the wool growers of the west, and the woolen manufacturers of the east, to write the tariff on woolen goods. My gratitude to him for this admission makes me regret that his investments in cotton mill stocks, outside of the mill trust, have not netted him quite seven per cent. Some time ago I noticed in a magazine an advertisement offering for sale a large issue of bonds by a New England wool manufacturing company. In order to get a high price for the bonds it was stated that in addition to paying a cash dividend of 20 per cent per annum and putting as much more in the treasury surplus, the company had erected a new mill out of the profits, costing a million. I am sorry that Fair Play didn't get in on this stock.

The statement that men's clothing is cheaper now than it was 25 years ago don't affect my argument. Forty years ago steel rails sold at $150 per ton, at no profit. Now they sell at $28 per ton and pay from 5 to 7 per cent on $1,500,000,000 of trust stock and bonds, three-fourths of which is water.

Fair Play asks if I would have Taft sign the bills passed by a Democratic house, and a Republican senate lowering the tariff? I answer unhesitatingly I would. I cannot wholly forget the consumer.

Finally Fair Play says: "Including everything in the Payne-Aldrich bill, the average rate is 21 per cent, in the Dingley bill it was 25 per cent."

Ah, here is the old argument of the prohibitive tariff advocates—the average duty. Let us prick this formidable looking bubble.

Mr. Aldrich and his friends say that his bill reduced the duty on $5,000,000,000 worth of products. Of this amount one-tenth was in the sugar schedule. The reduction there was such that if it had lowered the price at all—which the Sugar trust prevented—a person would have to eat a ton of it to save a dollar. Under the sundries schedule the Aldrich bill is credited with having reduced the duties on $1,719,000,000. More than half of this was on bituminous coal, of which we export seven times more than we import.

The duties were slightly lowered on leather and boots and shoes. Of these we export 60 times more than we import. As soon as the shoe trust got free hides it put up the price of shoes from $1.00 to $2.00 per pair.

Aldrich was heavily interested in the rubber manufacture and the duty was enormously raised on rubber goods. It was found that about the only item in the steel schedule that we could import was structural steel, and the duty on that was nearly doubled.

Every schedule in the tariff bill tells the same story, but I cannot go through all. So far as the interest of the consumer is concerned it is a deception and a fraud. It was planned and carried out wholly in the interests of the trusts. Where lowering the duty would neither hurt them nor help the consumer it was done. Where raising the duty would help them it was raised.

In view of the importance given to the average reductions by Fair Play one is reminded of the incident of the traveled Irishman (the writer is an Irishman, so no offense can be taken). Pat had just returned from a trip around the world and had much to tell his sweetheart. "Among other things, Bridget," said Pat, "I saw the handsomest man in the world. Polly Bellvidere, I think they called him." "Sure," said Bridget, "and what did he look like?" "Very much like me," said Pat, straightening himself up before Bridget's admiring gaze; "that is, we averaged about the same. His head was bigger nor mine, but my neck was twice the thickness of his. His shoulders were broader nor mine, but my stomach was twice the heft of his. Here," placing his hands upon his posterior, "I had him alsy, but his thighs were weightier nor mine. My knees and feet were a heap bulkier nor his feet, but he had me beat on calves. Altogether, we averaged about the same."

Perhaps Bridget was as well satisfied with Pat's averages as Fair Play is with the averages of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

IS THE DIME NOVEL NEEDED?

From the Kansas City Star.

Has an injustice been done the dime novel? Perhaps not. It may be all that it has been cracked down to be. But the inquiring spirit of the age may give it a brief day in court. Recent activities of the gunmen of New York make the inquiry pertinent.

The chief count in the indictment of the dime novel, then, is that it lured boys and youths to the west to hunt buffaloes and fight Indians. The question in defense is, shall that effect of the dime novel be considered longer an offense or be newly regarded as a virtue? Would it not be well to endow a dime novel fund, and by the spread of that seductive literature induce the Lefty Louies and Gyp the Bloods to go out west and meet Tarantula Pete and fight Geronimo?

All that would happen to the future Leftys and Gyps would be to have their revolvers taken away from them, get two or three kicks, and maybe spend a day or two in the calaboose.

Then the average Lefty would open a racket store somewhere, and the typical Gyp would become a huckster, and western society would have acquired some useful and unemotional citizens.

The place where gunmen flourish these days is in the big cities, and New York is nearly the only place where they take the "killer" business seriously for more than a week or so. Going up against a western sheriff takes a lot of the fun out of being a "bad man." But the New York police seem to add to the zest and the emoluments.

The point may be conceded to be interesting, even though the case for establishing free circulating libraries of dime novels may not be clearly established.

KANSAS CITY AND WILSON.

From the Kansas City Journal.

As a distinguished educator and American citizen, as the governor of one of the states of the great American Union and as the nominee for the presidency of one of the two big parties, Kansas City accorded Woodrow Wilson a greeting yesterday and last night which gave him assurance of its most respectful consideration. Although he comes merely as a candidate on the political hustings and not in any comprehensive capacity, the great west will give the doctor the glad hand whenever he sees fit to make it a visit, no matter under what auspices. It will drain a brimming beaker of welcome and will "Prosit" him in all heartiness and good fellowship as a public citizen and a private gentleman. If it does not agree with him politically it nevertheless esteems him personally.

The doctor is all right except that he is simply on the wrong side of the fence. He is training with the wrong crowd. He comes with the wrong message, a message which is the very essence of banality and bathos. He comes prating of economic "serfs" and all manner of tariff "outrages" which do not exist. He chants the wail of despair and discontent, the while the whole west is ringing with the song of good cheer and plenty. He bids the people exchange prosperity for depression. He asks the farmer to sacrifice his home consumers' market—his best market—in order that he may buy some kinds of foreign goods more cheaply. He asks the working man to trade a full dinner pail for jobs to foreign toilers. He asks the men with positions which enable them to maintain themselves and their families in comfort to adopt economic policies that mean stagnation, idleness and Coxey armies.

Kansas City and the great west are pleased to meet the doctor, but they refuse to take his prescription. They concede his preeminence as an abstract educator, but they do not believe that he is smart enough to convince them against all their experience in the past, all the evidence of their eyes in the present and all their reasonable conjectures for the future that the policies he preaches are the true American policies. For they have had experience with these policies and they know better.

A Problem in Mathematics

By RUTH CAMERON.

Here is a problem in mathematics for every thoughtful American. If the present generation is in twice as much of a hurry as the past generation, at what pace will the next generation travel?

Now that the children have gone back to school, when I look out my study window, almost every morning I see at least two or three youngsters walking their little legs off, or actually running towards school.

Thus early is the American habit of hurrying for every appointment inaugurated. This early do I say? What am I thinking about? According to one letter friend our children are taught the hurrying habit as soon as they leave the cradle. "Please write something," she urges me, "about the way people try to make little children keep up with their own longer strides. It makes me feel very sad to see a little toddler, not more than two or three years old dragged along at a dog-trot to keep up with some older person. I feel sure that the seeds of heart disease are sown in that way."

I don't doubt it, my friend, and I also feel sure that these seeds are tended and watered by the hurrying to school habit, which careless parents permit.

In fact, I once came into contact with tragic proof of that fact. For a little girl whom I used to know ran all the way to school one hot afternoon after a hearty noon-day meal, dropped into her seat, laid her head on the desk for the opening prayer and never lifted it again.

Of course, such tragedies as that are mercifully rare, but even when it does not cause any immediate calamity, the hurrying habit is sooner or later a trouble breeder, and we ought to teach our children to fight it.

I suppose we hurry because we hope to accomplish more, to crowd more into our days, but if you will take notice you will find that the people who accomplish the most are those who never hurry.

At a house where I once boarded, the 12-year-old daughter of the hostess did all the serving. Two grown women would undoubtedly have balked at her task, for there were sometimes 35 or 40 guests, but this wonderful little girl performed it gracefully and serenely. I used to watch her in wonder for she never carried more than two or three dishes at a time and she was not old enough to use the principles of scientific management. The secret of her success was simply that she never hurried and hence was never flurried, never lost time or poise.

The best thing this generation can do for the next is to refuse to pass on its own heritage of hurry. Let us do what we can to teach our children that the truest proverb ever written is "Haste makes waste" and waste not only of time but of happiness, health and efficiency.

Procrastination

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

"Procrastination" is a large, beefy word meaning to put things off until you can't resist doing them.

It is easier to procrastinate than it is to roll down a hill or fall over a wheelbarrow in the dark or conceal a large cool drink on a hot day. It is a natural talent. With no practice at all a young man will procrastinate as successfully as if he had learned the art from an expert at 60 cents an hour. Often a mere boy will invent a dozen new systems of procrastination in a day without any suggestion or encouragement.

The heroism and determination with which people procrastinate is remarkable. Often a man will walk 10 miles a day to borrow enough money to allow him to put off going to work for a few days longer. Many a man has cooked his own meals and darned his own socks for 50 years while trying to get around to the job of getting married.

At this very minute President Taft is spending all his time and much of his money in a violent attempt to put off packing up his household goods and disposing of the cat.

When a man is an accomplished procrastinator he does all of his work tomorrow. Tomorrow is also when he will get paid and when he will be worth anything to the country, and when his friends will be glad to have him come around, and will stop putting their pocketbooks in their shoes when they see him. Spain and Mexico have had to enlarge their tomorrows to take care of their unfinished business. Today in these countries is used for lighting cigarettes.

General McClellan was one of the most vicious fighters tomorrow that the world has ever seen. But General McClellan never got into history permanently because history leaves tomorrow to prophecy and devotes its attention to yesterday.

Procrastination is a great fault and we should regard it with horror but not in all cases. The man who knows how to procrastinate in the right place is wise. When we feel like punching a large man in a furious argument and also in a vulnerable spot, or when a mining stock promoter has almost induced us to buy neatly printed paper at $1,000 an ounce, the ability to procrastinate with skill and persistence is a great blessing.

POSTAL MOTOR WAGONS IN ENGLAND

From a Consular Report.

Seventy new motor mail wagons are about to be employed in London to convey letters and parcels between the central and district postoffices and railway stations. The wagons can carry a ton each and will bring up the motor fleet of the London general postoffice to about 100 vehicles.

In the judgment of the postoffice officials it is believed that this postal motor fleet would prove of great advantage during the continuance of a railway strike, as many of the wagons could be used for collection and distribution of letters and parcels in places even at a considerable distance from London.

SIMPLE BATH FOR AN ELEPHANT

From the Boston Evening Transcript.

During the recent heat-wave in Paris the proprietor of a great menagerie, noticing that his favorite elephant, Jimmy, was weak and listless, thought that a bath might do him good, so a bath was prescribed. First, six men soaped Jimmy all over, not forgetting—and this was the most delicate part of their task—the multitudinous folds of his ears. Then hoses played on his pachyderm from every quarter of the compass. Next came the drying, which was performed by throwing quantities of fine sand over the animal. Jimmy was then rubbed down and anointed with pure cocoa oil till his skin was smooth and shining. He appeared very much the better for his bath, and well he might, for this seemingly simple prescription had cost his owner $300.

BIBLE IN JAPANESE

From the London Daily Chronicle.

When the Bible was translated into Japanese an equivalent to the word "baptize" could not be found, and the word "soak" had to be used instead. So that Japanese Biblical students are acquainted with a person named "John the Soaker," and with a doctrine of "soaking for remission of sins." In that case the mistranslation is due to inadequacy of language. A schoolboy once rendered "Miserere, Domine!" into "Oh, heart-broken schoolmaster!" And another recovered from German the text, "The Spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak" in the form, "The ghost, of course, is ready but the meat is feeble."

SURGERY IN ANCIENT TIMES.

From Harper's Weekly.

It has been pointed out that the statues and plaques carved in stone and wood to be seen in the Gizeh museum prove that the priest mummifiers of Memphis 6,000 years ago possessed a profound knowledge of anatomy. Science, therefore, as Lockyer remarks, is as old as art, and they have advanced together.

Another remarkable fact in this connection is that excavations in Italy have brought to light scores of finely finished surgical instruments for certain operations, which are in almost every particular of form, like those reinvented in modern times and used by the most advanced surgeons of today.

Holiday gifts selected now will be laid aside, if you desire, until Christmas.

THE HASKIN LETTER

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS
X—THE FOUR CORNERED FIGHT OF 1824

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The years that intervened between 1800 and 1824 witnessed no election contest whose result was not a foregone conclusion. Jefferson was accorded a second term without serious dissent, and Madison was agreed to be his logical successor. Then came Monroe, who succeeded himself with but one dissenting vote. This was cast by a New Hampshire elector, who said he did it to prevent Monroe from equaling Washington in respect to a unanimous vote. The papers of the time show that he was roundly lambasted for having done so. After Monroe's second election everything was so unanimous that there was no party, unless all the people were included in the Democratic-Republican party.

It was evident that Monroe's successor would be chosen more upon the ground of personal preference than of political principles, so the fight for position in the next presidential contest assumed the proportions of a presidential free-for-all. Hezekiah Niles declared that there were no less than 16 or 17 "receptive" candidates as early as 1821. Monroe had three of the leading candidates as members of his cabinet, and early declared himself neutral in order to save himself from continual pulling and hauling and from charges of favoritism.

It was not long before the advocates of a third term were on hand with the usual story. They told Mr. Monroe that there were a dozen candidates for the presidency in 1824, and that not one of them had been strong enough to have even a hope of securing a majority of the electoral votes. This, they told him, would throw the contest into the house, an evil of evils. They also assured him that he had been entitled to a unanimous vote last time and that he would get it this time. Furthermore, they asserted, if he retired Europe would not understand it and would conclude that the United States had not backed him up on the Monroe doctrine.

Championed War of 1812.

Clay was so carried away with Monroe's pronunciamento that he offered a resolution in the house backing it up. Later, remembering that he had been called a "war hawk" but in his own west because of his vigorous championship of the War of 1812 for free trade and sailors' rights, he side-stepped the difficulty by asking that the resolution continue to lie on the table.

Monroe had a difficult time of it balancing between his candidate-advisers. He complained that Crawford had given him considerable trouble, although some historians assert that he threw the weight of his influence quietly to that gentleman. An undated memorandum among his papers shows that upon one occasion he consulted upon a proposition to ask Crawford to retire from the cabinet. That Crawford did not feel that he had the support of Monroe is shown by a fact, related in Adams' diary, that

DENVER PASTOR TALKS AT COLLEGE VESPERS

The Rev. Frank Houghton Allen, pastor of the Third Congregational church of Denver, spoke at the Colorado college vesper service yesterday afternoon on the theme, "Getting a Living or Getting Life." The central thought of the sermon was that in all activities by which men earn their living there is a material return in the way of a living, and a byproduct of character. It is this byproduct which is the essential thing in life, and it is the attainment by which alone the worth of life is to be judged, he declared.

The speaker chose at his text words from the fifteenth verse of the twelfth chapter of Luke: "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things that he possesseth."

"The Twentieth century mocks at these words," said the speaker, "and goes on to define success in terms of money, railroads and dividends; and when a man of wealth dies we ask the question, 'How much was he worth? How much did he leave?' And the answer is in terms of money. The man leaves all that he is worth, for he can take nothing of this with him.

Other Than Material Things.

"If a man is to take anything with him he must make something that is worth taking. This is not an ascetic ideal. Go into life to win all that you can win, young men. Fight with all the strength you can for values that are final, but remember that there are other things than merely material values. These are byproducts in getting a living that are worth more than the mere things we get while making a living."

The speaker defined these byproducts as righteousness, faith and love.

"But these words are not to be taken in any narrow, theological sense," he said. "Righteousness is rightness, right living in every aspect of life. Faith is a heroic confidence in God, and in the goodness of the world. Love is an active life of sacrifice and devotion to others, such as Paul showed."

The college chorus gave Handel's "Trust in the Lord."

MISSIONARY MEETING AT ST. ANDREWS CHURCH

A missionary meeting will be held at 8 o'clock this evening at St. Andrews church in Manitou, the speakers to be Archdeacon Parshall of Duluth, Dean Dowling of Fargo, S. D., and Dr. Rollit, secretary of the Sixth department of missions. Refreshments will be served in the crypt after the meeting to the congregation.

Colorado City DEPARTMENT

MAY REDUCE POLICE FORCE

The question of reducing the police force from four to three or to two men will come up before the Colorado City council at its regular meeting tonight, discussion of it having been postponed at the last meeting with the proviso that definite action be taken tonight. The proposed reduction of the department results from the fact that of its yearly appropriation of $4,500, $2,823.24 was spent in the first fiscal six months ending October 1. Cutting down the number of men employed is the only way the city has of avoiding a deficit at the end of the fiscal year, as other departments especially the street department, also have cut heavily into their appropriations.

It has been proposed to use one man in the daytime and two at night, although some of the aldermen think one as good as two at night, saying that two get together and take in the shows, neglecting their duty.

BABY MUCH IMPROVED

The condition of the seven-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Flatt, 316 Jefferson avenue, who was severely scalded Saturday morning, was reported yesterday as improved. Hopes are entertained for her recovery, although she will not be out of danger for several days.

Miss Freda H. Tecklenburg, 811 Jackson avenue, a clerk at Macks' candy store, has gone to visit her parents in Recksford, Kan., and friends in Illinois.

MESSAGE TO WORKING WOMEN

All women work; some in homes, some in church, some in the whirl of society, and in stores, offices and shops, tens of thousands are on the never ceasing treadmill, earning their daily bread.

All women, however, are subject to the same physical laws, and suffer alike from the same physical disturbances and weaknesses, peculiar to their sex. Every woman, no matter what her station in life, should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the great remedy for female ills, in which she should place her trust. Adv.

BUILDING FOR CHRIST UNIVERSALIST CHURCH NOW APPEARS CERTAIN

The congregation of Christ Universalist church, at a special meeting yesterday morning in Odd Fellows temple, ratified the action taken by the trustees some weeks ago when the Rev. William H. McGlauflin, head of the national church, was in the city. This action was the appointment of a committee composed of E. E. McDaniel and E. W. Davis to open negotiations with a view to buying or building a home for the local church. Considerable progress has been made in these negotiations, and the entire matter now hinges on the action of the trustees of the national church, who meet in the Church of the Divine Paternity in New York city, tomorrow and Wednesday.

It is expected that this board will appropriate enough money to build or buy a church here, and this will bring a resident pastor to the local church. This pastor will be Mrs. Charlotta Davis Crosley of Kent, O. She was called to the local pastorate at the first of this year, and the appropriation which the trustees made will insure her coming. Mrs. Crosley has been at her pastorate in Kent for 20 years.

REV. R. C. GARVER GIVES TALK ON "DISCIPLESHIP"

The Rev. R. C. Garver of the Asbury Methodist church spoke at the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon on "Discipleship."

He pointed out the various ways in which discipleship can be accomplished, four ways being by following Christ, by winsome holiness, by love to humanity and by steadfast loyalty to the truth.

He discussed the characteristics of the Christian life—those of carrying burdens, taking up the cross of Christ and by suffering from the thorns.

"Many of us have thorns in our lives that we do not care to talk about. We can get away both from thorns and burdens, but we cannot escape carrying the cross if we are true Christians," he said.

The music of the afternoon was led by W. C. Barnes.

COLORADO COLLEGE GIRLS ARE GIVEN A FIRE DRILL

Under the supervision of Chief McCartin of the fire department, the girls of Colorado college living in the dormitories held a spirited fire drill Saturday morning. Record time was made in getting out of the buildings and down the fire escapes, and Chief McCartin is satisfied that the girls can made an orderly and safe exit from the buildings in case of a blaze.

Following the drill the chief gave the girls a short talk on conduct at fires, and also how to prevent conflagrations.

SAMPLES SHOWN HERE OF NEW ORO STRIKE

Robert G. Mullen of this city and Cripple Creek exhibited some $200 ore yesterday, taken from the recent strike made in the property of the Oro Gold Mining company, of which he is president.

"El Oro" is the Spanish name for gold, and the company seems to be rightly named in this case. About two months ago the company took over the old Eclipse claim on Battle mountain, and is working it through the Comanche and Plume tunnel. It has low grade ore enough blocked out to run a 100-ton mill a year, and expects to put in a mill this winter.

The Oro people do not know how extensive the new strike is. They opened the ore in crosscutting the dyke. It is sylvanite, and contains considerable gray copper. Rusty free gold flecks the specimens, and occurs in the crystal formations.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

An interesting program has been arranged for the young people's social night at the Y. M. C. A. tonight. A play by the young people of the First Presbyterian church will be a feature, and refreshments will be served. Young people of the various churches of the city are invited.

Personal Mention

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Cary and Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Myers of Youngstown, O., arrived in Colorado Springs last night on an automobile trip to the Pacific coast. They are at the Acacia.

George W. Campbell of Rushville, Ind., a former law partner of Judge W. S. Morris of this city, arrived here last night for a short visit in the city.

C. B. Gordon of New York is a recent arrival at the Alamo.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Redford and daughter, Mrs. D. Doveton, Miss Mitchell and F. W. Caldwell of Trinidad, are at the Alta Vista. They are on a motor trip from Denver to Trinidad.

Henry F. Harrison of Brooklyn is a guest at the Antlers.

W. H. Merriweather of La Belle, Mo., is an Alta Vista guest.

LEIGH MUCH IMPROVED: MOTHER AT HIS BEDSIDE

William E. Leigh, the star halfback of the Colorado Agricultural college football team, who sustained a fractured skull in the game Saturday with the Colorado college Tigers, rallied from the effects of the injury yesterday in a manner surprising to the surgeons in charge. At a late hour last night his condition was reported much better than was to be expected, and it is believed that he will recover. The crisis will come in two or three days.

Mrs. L. E. Willoughby, mother of the injured player, arrived yesterday morning from Lamar to see her son. As soon as she was notified of the accident, she made arrangements to take the first train to this city, where she will remain until the boy can be moved.

John Hammond, a Colorado Springs boy, and a member of the Aggie team, is still in the city and is constantly at the bedside of his friend.

Leigh slept much yesterday, and although visitors were refused permission, he was able to talk with his mother and the physicians. Many flowers were sent to the injured player by Colorado college students.

Bishop--Apostles A Coslly Mistake

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 20.—We report one of Pastor Russell's discourses here today from the text, "Have not I chosen you twelve?" (John, vi: 70.) The pastor declared that shortly after the apostles had fallen asleep in death, Satan got a great power in the church, using two instrumentalities to introduce false doctrines.

"(1) By the Second century the ministers of the church began to be recognized as separate and distinct from the congregations, and instead of being elected by the congregations as their servants, they established themselves as a clerical class and began to lord it over the household of faith, themselves appointing the ministers over the congregations, instead of their being chosen by election, as in the days of the apostles.

"(2) At the same time the chief ones of the clergy, having the title of bishops, were claimed to be the successors of the apostles, with the same right to teach and to be considered infallible messengers of Christ. The doctrine of apostolic succession was formulated. They pointed out that when Judas lost his place amongst the twelve, the eleven met and chose one to fill his place.

The speaker called attention to the fact that the eleven apostles elected Matthias to their number in the place of Judas, without divine authority and sanction. The one they chose the Lord ignored, and we hear nothing further of him.

"In his own due time the Lord brought forward the one he purposed should take the place of Judas—St. Paul. Of him it is written that he was 'not one whit behind the chiefest of the apostles,' and that in visions and revelations he had more than they all.

This twelve-ness of the apostleship the master indicated in his prayer on the night of his betrayal, saying: 'Thine they were and thou gavest them me; I have lost none save the son of perdition.'

"Jesus again assured these twelve that they should sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel,' in the 'Times of Restitution' and 'Regeneration.' (Matthew, xix: 28; Acts, iii: 19-21.) Those twelve were again pictured symbolically in Revelation as the crown of twelve stars, on the head of the symbolled woman, who represented the church of Christ. Again, the twelve are pictured in the symbolic New Jerusalem, which portrays the church beyond the veil in heavenly glory. There they are symbolically represented as twelve foundation stones, with their names written therein.—Revelation, xxi:14.

False or Pseudo-Apostles.

"Of these twelve alone Jesus said, 'Whatsoever things ye bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatsoever things ye shall declare loosed or nonessential on earth shall be declared loosed in heaven'—so carefully would the great head supervise the words of those, who as his specially appointed and chosen ones, were his mouthpieces to the church.

"With St. Paul we can then agree that no additional instruction would be necessary: 'The word of God is sufficient, that the man of God may be thoroughly furnished.' (II Timothy, iii:15-17.) Consequently, whatever visions and revelations of pseudo-apostles, or whatever decrees of pseudo-apostles, may come to us, they are to be considered as merely human—not inspired—that our faith may not rest in the teachings of men, but in the word of God.—I Corinthians, ii:5.

"The Emperor Constantine, a convert to Christianity, noted that the teachings of the various bishops were quite contradictory. Although not baptized, he recognized that if these teachers were divinely guided their testimony would be harmonious. He thought to institute a comparison of their teachings with the Bible and to prove them right or wrong by its testimony. Indeed, in his day, and for about two centuries before and for centuries after, the sacred writings were practically lost to the church. Education, either for translating, or writing, or reading, was limited to the very few. Manuscripts were prohibited; nor were they thought necessary so long as the people implicitly believed that the bishops were living apostles, whose words were as authoritative as were those of the twelve.

"Constantine, in A. D. 325, convened the Council of Nice—called an 'apostolic council,' because the bishops were thought to be living apostles. Although Emperor Constantine, in order to attract a large assembly, proffered transportation expenses free, only about one-third of the bishops attended—385. The imperial order was that the apostles must decide what must be believed and taught.

"For days, weeks and months disputes prevailed; and finally the emperor, although not baptized himself, gave the final decision respecting the wording of the creed. And that Nicene Creed was promulgated as the Christian faith; and the edict went forth that all who would not accept it should be banished. Thus uniformity of faith was effected by a worldly prince, who probably never saw, nor once referred to the divine word, the Bible.

"For twelve centuries after this, apostolic succession continued operating through 'apostolic councils' and creeds. Is it any wonder that in all those fifteen centuries the truth itself was buried under a mass of superstition, error, false doctrine?

Bible the Torch of Progress.

"For four centuries the Bible has been coming back to the people. Proportionately liberty has been enlightening the world. Ignorance, superstition and persecution have been yielding to nobility and justice. We all praise God that we live in a day when it is no longer considered Godlike, Christlike, to persecute others!

"But, alas! for the past 50 years the influence of the Bible is on the wane! Infidelity, styled higher criticism, is rapidly undermining all faith in the Bible. Our colleges and seminaries are sending forth men whose religious faith they have destroyed. These are the leaders in business, science and theology. Alas!

"The present Pope, realizing the situation, has banned higher criticism in all Catholic institutions, and has issued an order that the faith of all Catholic ecclesiastics and teachers be tested by oath. He sees, too, that faith in apostolic succession is gone from the masses. He perceives that they no longer recognize the bishops as apostles and that to preserve religious faith the masses must be directed back to the words of Jesus, the twelve apostles and the prophets, as the only inspired authority on religion.

"This is the meaning of the Pope's direction to the bishops that the Catholic masses be urged to study the Bible. We commend his course and rejoice in it. Would that all Catholics and Protestants could unite and begin a fresh study of the word of God. With present helps, under divine blessing, surely its glorious features would more and more unite the hearts of all the faithful. Thus alone can be brought to pass the much-desired union of Christendom. Let us each do our part in Bible study for our own blessing and comfort, and let us trust the Lord for the glorious consummation promised."

Healthy Mothers

Women who bear children and remain healthy are those who prepare their systems in advance of baby's coming. Unless the mother aids nature in its pre-natal work the crisis finds her system unequal to the demands made upon it, and she is often left with weakened health or chronic ailments. No remedy is so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend, and no expectant mother should fail to use it. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant and elastic those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding; prevents numbness of limbs, and soothes the inflammation of breast glands. The system being thus prepared by Mother's Friend dispels the fear that the crisis may not be safely met. Mother's Friend assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother, and she is left a healthy woman to enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for our free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

ORIGIN OF DENTISTRY

From Harper's Weekly.

Dental therapeutics dates from a very remote epoch. It is not known when this art commenced; but it is well known that the Egyptians practiced it to a considerable extent. On a papyrus scroll estimated to date back 3,700 years before Christ, which was found buried at the feet of the god Anubis, there were found written remedies against painful molars and a way to alleviate other troubles of the teeth by means of pulverized drugs. The art of "filling" is very remote. Egyptian mummies have been found with molar cavities very carefully closed. Others have artificial teeth which show that in very ancient times this dental process was known. The Chinese cured toothache 2,700 years before our era. One of their methods was to put iron rust in the cavities.

A single province of India has 22,000,000 of inhabitants, for whom there are 21 foreign missionaries, or one missionary to each million of population.

s great set of films was secured
apt. F. E. Kleinschmidt, comer of the expedition, during a cruise throughout the icelocked
s of the American and Asiatic land in quest of specimens and ntific data. It is a sensational presentment of polar bears, sea lion, walrus, seal, moose, caribou, mountain sheep, fox, Arctic birds, etc., in their native wilds. Their family lives and habits are accurately and graphically shown in a series of stirring scenes from nature's great everlasting drama. The intrusion of man into their vast solitudes resulted in hand to hand battles with the giant bear and tusked monsters of the deep, often with no weapons save a lariat of hide—all of which are graphically recorded on the films.

Bears diving under icefloes and fighting with the pursuers, walrus battling to the death over possession of their harems, seals at play on their rookeries, moose and caribou in larger numbers, mountain sheep on their snowclad peaks, and myriads of birds on their icebound island homes: these and many similar subjects are depicted and fully described.

The pictures received the unqualified indorsement of naturalists and educators when presented before the Carnegie museum of Pittsburg and the American Museum of Natural History in New York city, and when placed on public view in one of New York's largest and most exclusive houses, the Broadway theater, crowded the playhouse during a two months' run which extended into the middle of the summer. Two hours of wholesome entertainment is furnished by the wonderful pictures.

These pictures come here direct from their record breaking business and run at the Broadway theater in Denver. Prof. C. E. Bevens, one of Captain Kleinschmidt's aides on the expedition, lectures at every performance.

A matinee will be presented daily.

SCENE FROM "SEVEN DAYS," WHICH WILL BE SEEN AT THE BURNS TONIGHT ONLY.

BURNS NOTES

"Seven Days," is the best farce comedy that has been produced in years. Critics wso saw it at The Burns on its initial production Thursday night were delighted with the quick action, complications of plot and bright dialogue.

It has been said that farce comedies act themselves, and that usually they are actor proof, so that, in the hands of so capable a company as The Burns players, every possible point is brought forward, to the enjoyment of the audience. Scenically, it is one of the most elaborate productions that The Burns has staged, the elaborateness of the setting astonishing many old timers—the kitchen scene being worked out to the smallest detail. The roof setting, with the beautiful drop, was so striking that the usual cold Colorado Springs audiences had to applaud the scene on the rise of the curtain.

We have nothing to fear in having this performance compared with that of the road companies which have shown this delightful farce here before.

To forget the blues, come to the Burns and see "Seven Days," not a dull moment in the three acts, the comedy of the season.

The Burns will always be kept clean, well ventilated and at even temperature; we have every modern appliance for these comforts.

You may have seen it here before, if so you need to come and see the Burns rendering—you won't fail to be delighted. Phone 200. "Seven Days" tonight.

Remember to see "the best in the best way" you must go to The Burns.

"Seven days," enough said.

A delightful musical program adds to a night's enjoyment. Come to the Burns—always clean, well ventilated and warm. Prices within reach of all. No road shows can give more finished productions than the Burns players.

Farce comedies act themselves, and usually are actor proof, so the quite capable Burns company finds this one easy to handle. Scenically, it is a most elaborate production. All three acts are elaborately staged. The kitchen scene is worked out to the last detail, and the roof setting was so striking that it brought a "hand" from the audience as the curtain went up.

If local people really are looking for amusement and harmless fun, and at a low price, they will pack The Burns tonight and have the laugh of their lives by seeing "Seven Days." The stock company puts the piece on with a good deal of dash, and the production compares favorably with that of the No. 2 road show that gave it here one season.

"Seven Days" is the best of the farce comedies that has been produced in late years, and you know that it rather revived that sort of thing so far as New York was concerned. I saw it first with the original company at the Astor theater, and I saw it again at The Burns, and my original judgment is correct. For quick action, complication of plot and bright dialogue "Seven Days" has not been surpassed.

SOAPSTONE FROM RUSSIA

From the Dundee Advertiser.

Numerous inquiries have been made at the commercial intelligence department of the board of trade, in Basinghall street, London, E. C., respecting the exhibit of soapstone which arrived a few days ago from the British vice consul at the Russian town of Kertch, in the Crimea. The stone, which is dug out of the ground, is there called Batchi-Sarai, and is known locally as "kheel," is used for all kinds of washing purposes and as an emollient. Of a marbled pale green and brown appearance, a piece of the mineral substance soaked in water crumbles to a soft paste. It is understood that none of the board's officials has yet risked shaving with the new stone, but Lord Basin feels no misgivings on the ground of its comparative cheapness, as it is a tenth of the price of common soap, several British firms have already become much interested in the commercial possibilities of the curious exhibit.

Although the United States is a salt-importing country it disposes of considerable quantities of special refined salt in foreign countries and the trade is increasing annually. A monograph entitled "Foreign Salt Market and Industry" has just been issued by the bureau of manufactures.

In the Seychelles islands they maintain parks for the rearing of tortoises, whose shells are by no means vanished from the lists of commerce. London and Paris buy some of them from the Seychelles last year and paid the best sum of $14,000 for the crop—$7 a pound in the rough.

Frederick the Great had his grenadiers, but the London police force is quite his equal in the matter of size. The regulation height is 6 feet 1 inch, with 35-inch chest measurement.

E. P. Costigan, Progressive Party Candidate for Governor.

"The Lifting of the Burdens"

"The object of these political remedies is, of course, to make our civilization more humane. Political betterment will assist economic improvement and will promote the advance our people are entitled to expect toward equality of opportunity for all the sons and daughters of men. Wealth should be more equally distributed; the pressing problem of the unemployed relieved. Beyond any and all political regeneration, our Progressive movement is accordingly pledged to definite economic statutes. Among these may be mentioned a strong public utilities law, with anti-pass features, subjecting all public corporations to state regulation based on ascertained physical valuation, of their issues of stocks and bonds, their freight, passenger and toll rates, and their public service generally. Through this and other channels the farmers, miners and laborers of Colorado are entitled to special consideration and protection. There should be a farm commission in Colorado, established by the state, as one of many necessary means to reduce the high cost of living, concerned with the investigation and dissolution of rigid regulation, as the general welfare shall require, of trusts and monopolies, in the public interest, by the state, the placing of the consumer directly in touch with the producer, and the lifting of the burdens of farm labor, especially among women, and dealing with the establishment of a more scientific, intelligent and profitable development of farm industries."—From E. P. Costigan's Letter of Acceptance.

PROGRESSIVES TO SWEEP STATE

Situation Cleared Up Since Primaries and Greatest Revolt of History Brewing Against Old Parties

LONG LEAD FOR ROOSEVELT IN DENVER

Denver, Colo.—(Special)—A preliminary canvass of sections of Denver, regarded as representing an average in the sentiment in the Capital City, proves conclusively that the Roosevelt sentiment is overwhelming.

The following vote, from a canvass recently made in the sections mentioned, conveys a very good idea of the political feeling:

	Wilson.	Roosevelt.	Taft.
Colfax to Eighteenth and Sherman	6	219	3
Arapahoe, Thirty-second to Twenty-eighth Sts.	92	101	27
Stout and Twenty-seventh Sts.	7	23	4
Custis, Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Sts.	72	64	8
Ninth Ave., Ogden to Sherman	15	23	4
W. Eleventh Ave., Speer to Bannock	16	21	5
Thirteenth Ave. and Delaware to W. Colfax	9	29	5
Decatur, W. Twenty-third Ave.	31	42	12
Grove to Elliot	68	116	27
Platte, Center, etc.	26	43	7
Eleventh, Arapahoe to Sixth and Jason	111	72	12
South Denver	68	192	27

Outside districts, Aurora, Littleton, Castle Rock, Sedalia and Palmer Lake, 3,921 for Teddy; 1,111 for Taft and Wilson.

WEEKLY DENVER LETTER

"You might just as well attempt to turn back the tide of the ocean with a pitchfork," said Chairman Stocker, of the State Progressive Committee this week, "as to attempt to prevent the desertion from the old parties to the new one. We are more than gratified. Conditions at this time are far better than we had ever hoped or contemplated they would be.

"Fifty-four out of the sixty-two counties in the state are organized and wherever an organization has been effected the party and platform have swept everything. From every section of the state the messages of good cheer are coming and before November 5 has been reached it looks as if Colorado would furnish the nation with the report of a landslide."

The increasing demand for Progressive literature is perhaps one of the most dependable indications pointing to the changed conditions. Hundreds of pounds per day are mailed out and the thinking people of the state are paying particular attention to the Progressive platform or what is known as "the contract with the people."

At no time since suffrage was granted woman in the state have they shown the same energy, enthusiasm and determination they are manifesting in the present campaign. Hundreds of the representative women of the state are devoting their time, without reward or remuneration, to the cause of the Progressive party on account of its declaration in favor of the ballot for women nationally. In the city of Denver, Jane Addams clubs, Progressive Women's Leagues and other similar organizations are being effected in nearly every precinct. One of the most prominent women of Denver attributed the interest of women in the campaign in favor of the Progressives this fall to the determination of the women to take advantage of the opportunity to accomplish what men have failed to accomplish in years gone by.

"We see that there is something wrong when the husband has to work year in and year out and the only thing he gets for it—after meeting the high expense paid for everything—is a receipt for a scanty living. The men just go right on toiling and really do not have time to study conditions. The Progressive platform means something. It means that the success of the party will change conditions and that we will not be under the control of the special interests to the extent that it will make us pay twice as much as we should for what we require to live.

Besides this, it means something to the women of the state to know that they are working for a platform and policy that contemplates care for those who are injured in line of duty. Our fathers and sons and husbands are entitled to a square deal and this is the first political party to offer us anything of the kind. I hope every woman in the state will get out and work for this party. It has placed character above money and it is our duty as women to see that an effort of this character is encouraged."

Edward P. Costigan, Progressive candidate for governor, is making a whirlwind campaign and attracting large audiences wherever he goes. It is admitted that the Progressive crowds show a more intense enthusiasm than those brought together to hear the addresses of the campaigners for the old parties.

"The people are giving us royal receptions," said Mr. Costigan at headquarters. "I have been most agreeably surprised as a result of the enthusiasm and the understanding the people have shown. While the platform of the Progressive party is comparatively new, the fact remains that it has been discussed and commented upon by men and women in every section of the state. It represents the right doctrine at the right time. The people realize this."

Reports received from Prowers, Bent, Lamar, Otero, Pueblo and the entire Arkansas Valley are especially cheerful. The farm vote in this section will give the Progressives a big lead over both the old parties. In Mesa, Delta, Montrose and other Western Slope counties, where the Progressive sentiment has always been strong, the vote will represent two or three to one. In Mesa county the Taft vote will be practically a negligible quantity. In Garfield county the break has been made and Republicans and Democrats are deserting the old parties by the hundreds. Northern and Eastern Colorado is unquestionably Progressive and the estimates made in this section show that even at the present time the majority for the Progressives over both old parties would be a strong one. By the time election day arrives it will prove overwhelming.

The sentiment in Denver cannot be mistaken. The report of the canvass made, published herewith, shows about the average condition in Denver. This canvass was made for the purpose of determining exact conditions for use at headquarters and not for publication. With the passing of every day the lead of the Progressives will be increased.

Summed up, the situation is, indeed, a remarkable one without parallel in the history of politics. There can be no doubt regarding the fear of the old parties. They have endeavored to make the tariff a paramount issue in the state. Republicans and Democrats are agreed that a tariff simply to protect is a good thing, but Progressives believe that a tariff should be so arranged that it will pay dividends to the people rather than to the corporation. Then the old parties have attempted to tie the people to the chariot of tradition, but the people are beginning to realize that live issues are the ones demanding immediate attention.

The strongest feature of the Progressive platform, however, lies in its broad and genuinely human treatment of questions involving the rights and duties of the people. Progressives believe that we should protect and conserve our human resources as well as our commercial industries. In other words, they believe that man comes before money and that when we weaken and destroy our human resources—our children, our brawn, our brain and our character that, as a nation, we are destroying the only power that can create the other resources for which the old parties show such solicitude.

The people are just beginning to think of the things the politicians have forgotten in the past. They begin to realize that if it pays the special interests to participate in politics, it ought to pay the people—hence the general awakening all over the nation.

In a recent editorial in the Colorado Springs Gazette, Clarence P. Dodge's paper, he hit the bullseye when he said:

"Deplorable as it may appear, the fact cannot be disputed that for the past quarter of a century this nation has proven itself money mad. It has been a case of money up—men down. Political parties, ostensibly representing the people, have assembled in convention and resolved to what: protect our industries, foster our banking institutions, protect our corporations and all these things—really necessary but of secondardy importance—but what have they said of these matters?

"Conserving human resources.

"Protecting and encouraging men and women.

"Safeguarding the tender interests of children.

"Building character and establishing a code of moral honor.

"Providing for an honest wage for the honest toiler.

"Prevention of gambling in those commodities which represent the life and health of the people.

"When we destroy the square deal—when we place money above manhood—when we give special privileges to a few that cannot be given to all, we destroy hope and leave no incentive for the discouraged human being."

The press of the state can be regarded as being in a way representative of sentiment. Fifty-two papers in various sections of Colorado are working like loyal patriots for the success of the Progressive cause. A few of these were formerly Democratic publications, but a majority of them were aligned with the Republican party.

Headquarters have been established for the Progressive party on the second floor of the Auditorium hotel in Denver. Friends of good government from every section of the state, are invited to call when in the city. If you cannot call, write "Progressive Headquarters, Auditorium Hotel, Denver, Colo." for copies of the Progressive platform, "the contract with the people," and other matter of vital interest to every voter in Colorado. Women or men who can devote a little time to the betterment of political conditions in their communities are invited to furnish their names and addresses. The campaign is proving a landslide for popular government where the rights of human beings are placed paramount to every other right. Thousands of loyal workers—men and women—are on the firing line in the state today. They are armed with a righteous cause and will triumph as certain as it is that the night follows the day.

An Appeal to the Conscience of the People

Following is a brief summary of the program and platform of the Progressive party. It is dedicated to the men and women and the children of the land. It breathes a prayer and holds out a hope for humanity. Study it thoroughly and thoughtfully. It is the platform of the people today and its human element is settling Colorado ablaze with enthusiasm.

Progressive Party Method to Secure Rule of the People

Direct primaries.
Preferential primaries for candidates for the presidency.
Direct election of United States senators.
Policy of the short ballot.
Initiative, Referendum and Recall.

Progressive Party Program to Secure Social and Industrial Justice

The supreme duty of the nation is the conservation of human resources through an enlarged measure of social and industrial justice.
We pledge ourselves to work unceasingly in State and Nation for:
Prohibition of child labor.
Minimum wage scale for working women.
Prohibition of night work for women.
An eight hour day for women and young persons.
One day's rest in seven for all wage earners.
An eight hour day in continuous twenty-four hour industries.
Abolition of convict contract labor, except for governmental consumption, and the application of prisoners' earnings to the support of their dependent families.
Publicity as to wages, hours and conditions of labor.
Reports on industrial accidents and diseases.
Public inspection of all tallies, weights, measures, and all check systems on labor products.
Standards of compensation for death by industrial accident, injury and trade disease.
Pensions for sickness, irregular employment and old age.
Establishment of continuation schools for industrial education under public control.
Establishment of industrial research laboratories.
Organization of the workers men and women as a means of protecting their interests and promoting their progress.
The establishment of a department of labor.
Prohibition of the issuance of injunctions when such injunctions would not apply when no labor disputes exist.
The right to trial by jury for contempt in labor disputes.
Minimum safety and health standards in industry.
Prevention of industrial accidents, of occupational diseases overwork and involuntary unemployment.

Equal Suffrage

The Progressive Party, believing that no people can justly claim to be a true democracy which denies political rights on account of sex, pledges itself to the task of securing equal suffrage to men and women alike.

AGGIE PLAYER'S FAILURE TO USE HEADGEAR COSTLY

College Faculty Regrets Accident--Injury to Richardson Not Serious--Nebraska Next

Was it the failure of William Leigh to protect the lads condition until the surgeons gave out the statement that he would recover.

The star Aggie player is not wearing a headguard, that resulted in the injury that will keep him out of football for the rest of his life and that for a time seemed critical?

This is the question that football fans who saw Saturday's gruelling battle between the Farmers and the Tigers are asking. The shot on Leigh's head that was crushed could have been protected with a padded felt headguard, as used by the Tigers, and experts believe that the blow would have been lessened to such an extent that there would have been no serious consequences had the player worn the guard.

Hughes Learns Lesson.

Hughes, athletic mentor for the Aggies, expresses his regret following the game that he had not ordered his men to use headguards, and it is likely that in future contests he will have coverings for the ears of his players. Coach Rothgeb is particular about seeing that his players are well protected from any injury. Cheese, the lightning fast halfback is about the hardest man on padded sweaters in the college and he uses two a game, while several wear shin and nose guards.

The accident to Leigh was a matter of much regret to the Tiger team, to the students and the faculty of the college. The enjoyment of the victory was somewhat darkened by the accident and the entire school was anxious the lads condition until the surgeons gave out the statement that he would recover.

Would Have Disbanded.

Aggie players stated before they left last night that if Leigh's accident should have been critical the team would have disbanded. It is not believed that any action would have been taken by Colorado College, although no such question came up at the time.

The condition of Richardson, the star center, who was carried from the field by four men against his will, in the fourth quarter was reported as satisfactory at Fort Collins last night. Richardson is suffering from a broken knee cap and complete exhaustion and will not be in Aggie football for several weeks, according to Coach Hughes.

Richardson Improving.

Richardson was injured in the rush that resulted seriously for Leigh, but continued in the game. In the fourth quarter, when the teams lined up, Richardson fell to the ground from exhaustion, but cried to be allowed to finish the game.

Kramer, the husky star on the Tiger left wing, believes that it was the shock of the tackle made by Leigh that caused the injury. "Leigh made a fierce dive for me, and when he struck, his chin hit my knee. The force knocked both of us over and we rolled two or three times. Leigh was unconscious before I had stopped rolling, I believe, and it must have been the impact with the ground or somebody's heel in the mixup that caused the injury," said the Tiger end.

Tiger Snap Noticeable.

An incident worthy of comment was the wonderful endurance of the Tigers shown during the game. During the third quarter when time was being taken out for Leigh, instead of resting on the ground as the Aggies did, the Tigers got up and trotted around in circles to keep into good shape and to loosen up the stiffened muscles.

Coach Rothgeb's par excellent judgment in the use of his second string men was an important factor in the Tiger defense. With a light line and a hard-hitting opposition, Rothgeb sent in a fresh man when he saw a player show any signs of exhaustion. Another purpose was in view, that of shooting in the sub player to try him out, because there are but few Tigers that have cinched their position. The second string men are just a shade behind the men who started the game and with the competition for places so keen, the Tigers are always fighting for their positions in practice and in the game. It's like a machine with a number of extra parts for each important function, and no matter what happens there is always somebody to take the position and play it like a veteran.

Nebraska Here Saturday.

The first game ever played between the Tigers and the Nebraska Wesleyan team will be the bill that Manager Lynch has arranged for Saturday at Washburn field. The Nebraska team is an unknown quantity in the game, but a defeat at the hands of South Dakota by the score of 55 to 0 and the subsequent defeat of South Dakota by Minnesota put more elements of uncertainty in the battle. It will be a good test of Colorado football against Nebraska ideas and should be a good game. Whether or not the attitude will affect the visitors is not known, but it is believed that Rothgeb's speedy shifty plays will be about as much as the visitors can handle.

The Nebraska team will outweigh the locals about 15 pounds to the man on the line and about 10 in the backfield.

The eleven will arrive here Friday in charge of Coach Clark and is as follows:

EXTRA PARTS FOR COACH ROTHGEB'S MACHINE

The above three players form an important part of the Tigers' second string team upon which Coach Rothgeb can rely. Reed in white they are ready to go in from top to bottom, "Moore" Herrod, quarterback, who although light, is a good general, and a mean tackler. "Chick" Emery, fullback Denver star, who is a scholar in Colorado and who is also a good punter. Herrod and Emery constitute a combination that has been playing with the best of them and is an important feature of the team.

Finn Runner Makes Three New Records

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 20.—Three world's professional running records were broken by William Kolehmainen, of Finland, this afternoon when he won an international Marathon race around a course made by the Finnish runner, the record for 25 miles 385 yards in 2 hours 39 minutes 2 seconds, covering the second of four 25 mile heats at Powder Hall, Scotland, last night by Hans Holmer, who finished second today's event. Kolehmainen covered 25 and 26 miles in 2 hours 39 minutes and 2 seconds, while the time for 25 miles and 385 yards was 2 hours 39 minutes and 2 seconds.

MATTY MAKES RECORD IN THROWING TO THE RED SOX

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—In the final world's series battle Matheweson pitched 124 balls to the batters in the 10 innings. He threw only 92 balls in the first nine innings, the smallest number of balls pitched in nine innings by any twirler during the series. The tenth inning, which was still unconpleted when the game ended, was Matheweson's worst in delivery. He pitched 27 times to the batters in that inning, 16 of which were called balls. Bedient threw 90 balls to New York batsmen in the seven innings he pitched, while Wood threw 134 balls in three innings.

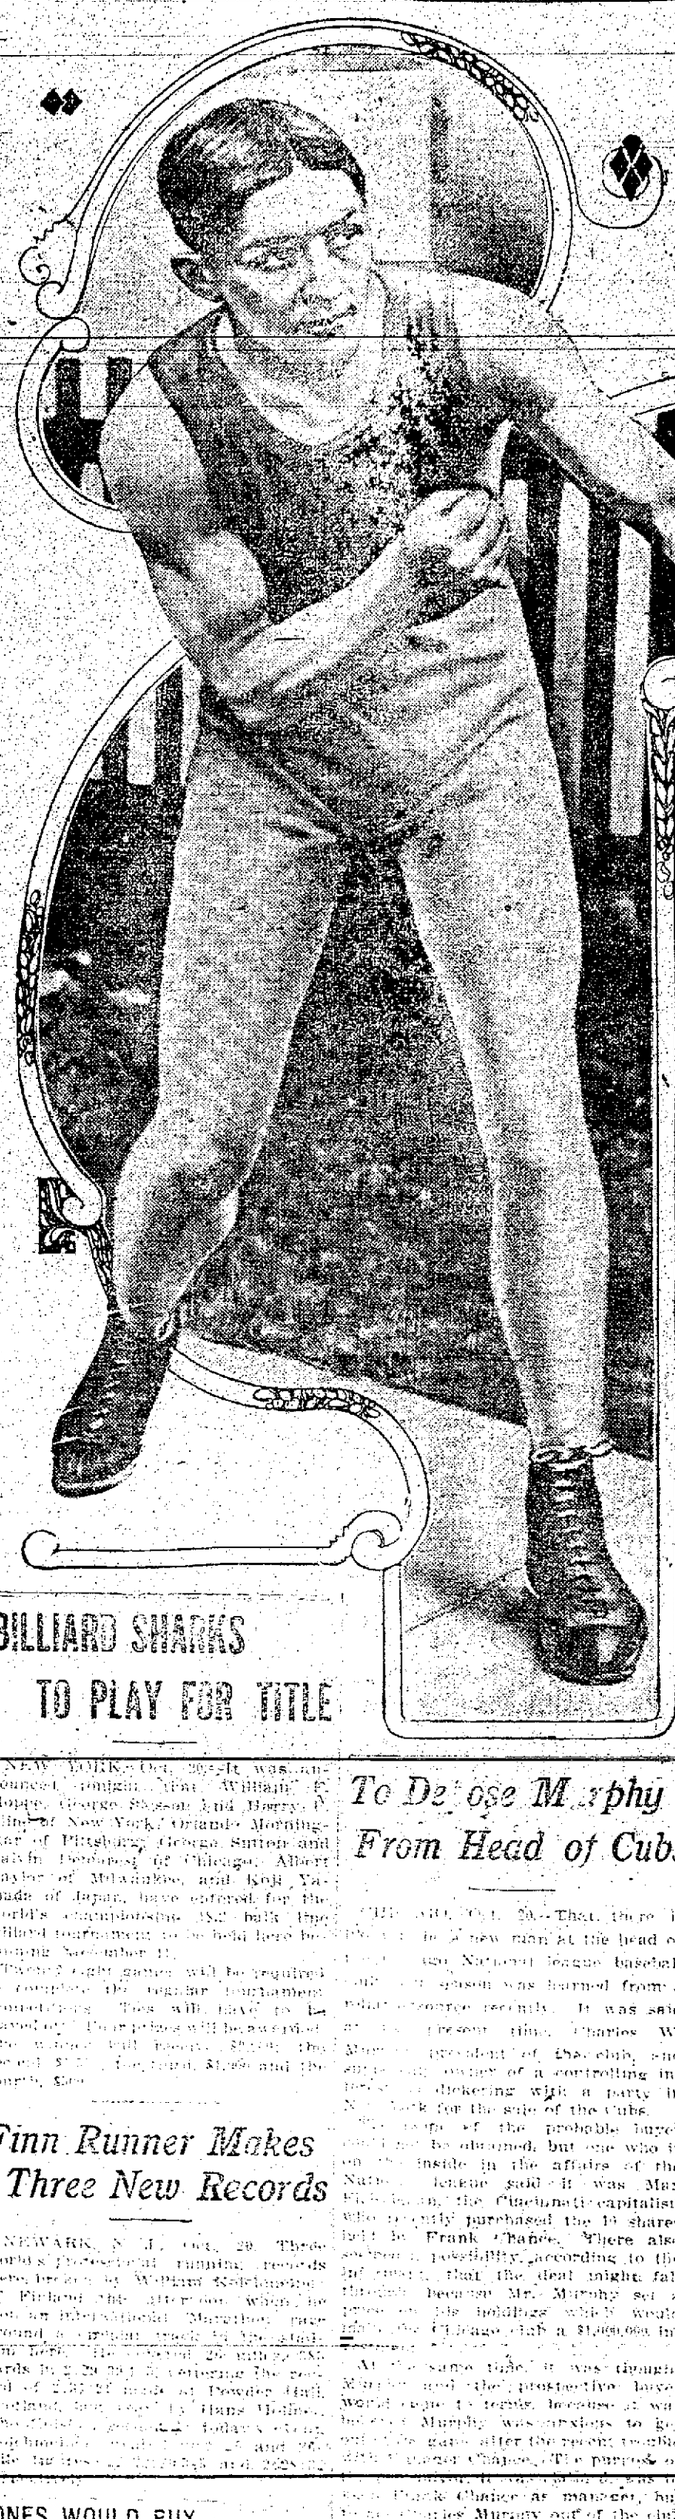
The Chicago fans undoubtedly are strong for Frank Chance, and for that reason it is said that Murphy sees he has made a great mistake and now is willing to get out of baseball. He has been president of the Cubs since the fall of 1905, and it is estimated that since that time he has made close to a million dollars out of the game.

The Fargo Automobile club of Fargo, N. D., is seeking a site for a club house which it proposes to erect early in the spring. The plan is to build a club house on the banks of the Red river of the north, a few miles from the city. Golf links and tennis courts will be provided, and the place will be conducted as a [illegible] and country club.

TOMMY BURNS A PROMOTER

Tommy Burns, ex-champion heavyweight pugilist, has given up the idea of returning to the ring, and will promote boxing contests in Calgary, Can., where he is living. He has built an arena with seats for 4,000, and it is to be roofed over so that bouts can be pulled off in winter. The arena is located 10 feet outside of the city limits, where a reform agitation cannot affect the club.



GEORGES CARPENTIER,
Premier boxer of France, who is coming to America soon to display his fistic wares. Carpentier has been successively the title holder in the bantamweight, featherweight, lightweight, welterweight and middleweight classes, and is still taking on weight. Carpentier has signified his desire to fight middleweight championship matches with Eddie McGoorty and Mike Gibbons.

M'Donald Beats Rose's Shot Mark

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—A world's record with the 21-pound shot put was made by Patrick McDonald, of the Irish-American Athletic club, at Celtic park today, increasing the distance to 42 fet 4 1-4 inches. The previous record, 40 feet 3 3-8 inches, was made by Ralph Rose of California, in 1897.

Louis Scott of South Patterson Athletic club, 10-mile national champion, broke the American four-mile record, his time being 20:08 1-5, which is 2 4-5 seconds faster than George Bonhag covered the distance two years ago.

Auto Notes

The words "City of Toronto," in conspicuous letters, must be painted on all motor cars owned by Toronto, Can., under a resolution adopted by the board of controllers of the municipality.

The grand jury at Portland, Ore., has recommended an ordinance prohibiting automobiles for hire to stand on public streets. The jury asserts that the practice causes delinquency to minors.

Citizens of Moose Jaw, in the province of Alberta, Can., are elated over the possibility of buying their future cars "home-made," instead of having them shipped from the factories in the states. A motor manufactory is being erected there.

In case the steering gear shows backlash, and shifting the wheel around a quarter turn does not remedy the trouble, investigate the keys in the system. A worn keyway on the rocker shaft will produce a most annoying backlash.

In soldering flexible cables, if possible avoid the use of a flux containing acid. Such a flux will creep up between the fine wires forming the cable and corrode them, in time completely eating away the wire and breaking the circuit. Rosin dissolved in alcohol is a good flux for such operations.

Never completely fill the gear or differential case with lubricant. Remember that the grease must have room to flow around the case, and that there is considerable expansion due to heat when running. Some cases are provided with vents, which admit air to the interior to take care of this expansion and contraction, and these vents should be kept free from dirt which tends to clog them.

The taxicab fever has struck El Paso, Texas, and as no antidote has as yet been found for this disease the clicking instruments soon will be heard on the streets of that city. Two taxicabs have been ordered by a garage man, and as the prevailing rates for automobile transportation range anywhere from $5 to $8 an hour, the taxis are likely to divert some "loose cash" to his pockets.

According to the statistics furnished by the state registrar of automobiles, the rural sections of Ohio are buying automobiles as never before. The wheat and oats crop is being rapidly converted into motor cars, as is shown in the number of applications for registration, coming from the rural counties. Of the licenses now issued about 50 per cent come from the strictly agricultural communities.

Springs that are squeaky may be cured by jacking up the body of the car in such a way that the chassis hangs from the springs and separates the leaves, and then apply flake graphite. A little on the point of a penknife, distributed here and there on each leaf, will do the trick. In case the springs are stiff, it is probable that they are rusted and they will have to be [illegible] taken apart. After disconnecting the springs, separate the leaves and remove the rust with emery paper. Then apply graphite and reassemble.

Ontario's revenue last year from the sale of licenses for motor vehicles totaled $50,831, twice the amount received during the year 1910, which was $24,894. The revenue for 1906, the first year fees were imposed, was only $15,235.15. The licenses issued last year totaled 11,333, and for 1910, 4,230, while in 1906, 1,176 licenses were issued. Fees collected for issuing charters to automobile corporations totaled $235,663.10.

There are now indications that efforts will be made during the coming session of the Pennsylvania legislature to enact drastic antispeeding laws. As a result of the accident in Philadelphia, in which nine men lost their lives at one time, Mayor Blankenburg of that city has issued orders to the police to curb high speeding as much as possible, and is having drawn a bill which he will put before the state law makers. He favors fines of $10 to $15 for the first offense of reckless driving, $50 for a second offense and $250 for a third, with forfeiture of license for a fourth.

With a regard for the comfort and safety of the Los Angeles traffic, the officers of the Automobile Club of Southern California have worked out a quicker and more efficient plan than the one now employed for cleaning the city streets. The plan involves cleaning the streets by means of air tanks fastened to the street cars. The cleaning of the streets could then be quickly and effectually done during the hours from 2 to 4 a. m. Motorists who have had tr[illegible] and accidents caused by tire skid[illegible] while the streets were being cl[illegible] under the present system are wat[illegible] the outcome of the safer plan[illegible] interest.

Having gained a lot of exper[illegible] in handling tours through the [illegible] Four States events, the Indiana A[illegible] mobile Manufacturers association [illegible] now thinking of branching out. [illegible] it is probable that a tour from [illegible] dianapolis to San Francisco will [illegible] held in 1913. The route of the [illegible] as roughly outlined would follow [illegible] of the proposed routes of the Nat[illegible] Stone highway from Indianapolis to [illegible] Pacific coast. The tentative r[illegible] known as the central, leads thr[illegible] St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, [illegible] ver, Salt Lake City, Ogden and Sa[illegible] mento to San Francisco. It is [illegible] mated that the trip would take [illegible] 16 to 20 days, running time. [illegible] advantages of such an event, as [illegible] curing for the Indiana men early [illegible] licity from the transcontinental t[illegible] to the 1915 exposition, and also o[illegible] ing new territory, seemed to appe[illegible] the men at the meeting.

That Montreal will see two a[illegible] mobile shows during the coming wi[illegible] seems now assured, the preliminary arrangements having been compl[illegible] for holding the Montreal Automo[illegible] and Motor Truck exhibition in [illegible] Drill hall, January 25 to Februar[illegible] 1913, in addition to the one to be [illegible] in Mr. Wilcox of Toronto. The [illegible] named exhibition is to be conducte[illegible] and under the auspices of the [illegible] automobile dealers.

WHAT IS CAUSE OF MANY INJURIES TO PLAYER

Old Players Puzzled Over Question--Seven and One Killed This Year in State

Injury to seven Colorado football players and the death of one in the season which is only about one-third over is causing considerable comment in gridiron circles in Colorado, and so far no plausible explanation has been ofered. Whether the new rule allowing a team four downs to punch the line for 10 yards, other concepts of the rules, or whether the teams are so evenly matched in the state, are qualities undetermined in connection with the question.

The general fitness of the Colorado college team has prevented any injury of serious nature to players of that squad. The team plays hard, harder than for years, but they have been coached in the various methods of warding off any serious consequences.

Burgess Recovering.

Burgess of Wyoming was injured in a game with the Tigers a week ago, but has been able to practice, his sprained back proving far less serious than was first believed.

The only fatality of the season was that in which Capt. Alvin Schre[illegible] Longmont was killed three weeks

D. U. Badly Crippled.

The Denver university football [illegible] is in the worst crippled state in [illegible] as the result of the terrific gam[illegible] Utah last Saturday, in which th[illegible] isters not only suffered defeat, [illegible] score of 66 to 0, but lost three o[illegible] star men from the game for [illegible] weeks. The players hurt are: C[illegible] Schroeder, who is in a Salt Lak[illegible] hospital, suffering from concuss[illegible] the brain. Halfback Barker h[illegible] breastbone fractured, and Ha[illegible] Flemming has a dislocated kn[illegible] The two last mentioned are no[illegible] ously injured, but will probab[illegible] kept from the game the rest [illegible] season.

Schroeder received his injury [illegible] first quarter of the game, and [illegible] their captain gone, the team wa[illegible] able to withstand the plunging [illegible] Utah backs. Although his condi[illegible] not critical, it may keep him [illegible] the game with Occidental, which [illegible] plays Saturday.

BACKFIELD PLAYERS TO BE STARS THIS YE[illegible]

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—This is "back-field year" in football. Practically every new man of any real promise whatever developed this far, in the east at least, is a member of the ball-carrying corps. It seems certain that when the curtain shall have rung down at the end of November, the fellow stamped as the season's greatest gridiron warrior will be one of the quartet behind the line. Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Pennsylvania, the Big Four, all have their one particular crack who has jumped into the fore at the outset.

During the last decade the bright special lights of the several seasons have hailed from almost every position. Last year he was an end, the one, only and peerless Sam White of Princeton, who picked up fumbled balls and galloped over half the field length in scoring victories over Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth. The preceding season he was a quarterback. Pearl Sprackling of Brown, who practically unsupported by a mediocre team, tore off open field runs of dazzling brilliancy, his greatest achievement being an almost single-handed defeat of Yale. In 1909 Jack Kilpatrick, a typical Yale style of 200-pound end, was the sensation, his [illegible] wing being totally impregnable all year and his work in getting down under kicks putting him among the greatest ends in history.

Coy a Pulverizer.

The season of 1908 brought forth the man considered by many the greatest that ever played. He was a fullback, the tremendous Ted Coy, of Yale, the best all-around kicker of his year and the most powerful line pulverizer within memory. That this year will offer a man even closely comparable with him is not to be expected. Another fullback was the star of 1908 in Sam Kennard of Harvard, who made a field goal that beat Yale. Walter Eckersall, Chicago's marvelous quarterback of 1906, was in a class by himself, as a dropkicker, was an untouchable specter in an open field, a sturdy interferer for his backs and an unfailing general in directing the attack.

Tom Shevlin, a human combination of battering ram, stonewall and bullet, who featured every Yale game [illegible] was a greater end even than the Kilpatrick because of the fearful [illegible] with which he hurled his 200 p[illegible] down the field. In 1904 the guar[illegible] sition had its day. John De Wit[illegible] tainly the most sensational and [illegible] the most capable linemen in th[illegible] nals of the game, held the cen[illegible] the stage. His long run a la[illegible] White, followed by a 45-yard goa[illegible] er a fair catch, humbled Yale and the Tigers the title.

Willie Heston, a halfback of t[illegible] resistible, keep-on-going, tear-apart sort, won the 1903 honor Michigan. Now, coming to the [illegible] year of the decade, we find Col[illegible] possessing the top rung man. He Harold Weeks, the wonderful hal[illegible] and hurdler, whose fame has liv[illegible] New York's big university the years, though the game he helped great has been under faculty ba[illegible]

Surveying the entire 10 years, w[illegible] three ends, two quarterbacks, guard, two fullbacks and two backs in the conspicuous class. In er words, there are four linemen six backs. The line seems to stan[illegible] the chance of catching up any difference this year, everything ing to the back field increasing its jority.

Second Coy in Flynn.

The quartet which has bounded t[illegible] fore included Flynn of Yale, Hard of Harvard, Fred Trenkman of P[illegible] ton, and Harrington of Pennsylv[illegible] Of the bunch, Hardwick and F[illegible] look the best, with any edge in [illegible] of Flynn. The latter played his varsity game for Yale against Syra[illegible] a week ago and was two-thirds of attack as well as a star on def[illegible] Among other things, he scored tw[illegible] Yale's three touchdowns and still other which was disallowed becaus[illegible] officials considered that he hurdled tackler. All of them were on ru[illegible] between 20 and 50 yards. At Yale are booming Lefty Flynn as a se[illegible] Ted Coy. That, to be sure, is [illegible] a little too far, but after seeing great performance of last week, w[illegible] not do otherwise than declare hi[illegible] appear at least the equal of any [illegible] since the great Ted.

AGGIE PLAYER'S FAILURE TO USE HEADGEAR COSTLY

College Faculty Regrets Accident---Injury to Richardson Not Serious--Nebraska Next

Was it the failure of William Leigh, the star Aggie player, in not wearing a headguard, that resulted in the injury that will keep him out of football for the rest of his life and that, for a time seemed critical?

This is the question that football fans who saw Saturday's gruelling battle between the Farmers and the Tigers are asking. The spot on Leigh's head that was crushed could have been protected with a padded felt headguard, as used by the Tigers, and experts believe that the blow would have been lessened to such an extent that there would have been no serious consequences had the player worn the guard.

Hughes Learns Lesson.

Hughes, athletic mentor for the Aggies, expresses his regret following the game that he had not ordered his men to use headguards, and it is likely that in future contests he will have coverings for the pates of his players. Coach Rothgeb is particular about seeing that his players are well protected from any injury. Cheese, the lightning fast halfback is about the hardest man on padded sweaters in the college and he uses two a game, while several wear shin and nose guards.

The accident to Leigh was a matter of much regret to the Tiger team, to the students and the faculty of the college. The enjoyment of the victory was somewhat darkened by the accident and the entire school was anxious over the lad's condition until the surgeons gave out the statement that he would recover.

Would Have Disbanded.

Aggie players stated before they left last night that if Leigh's accident should have been critical the team would have disbanded. It is not believed that any action would have been taken by Colorado College, although no such question came up at the time.

The condition of Richardson, the star center, who was carried from the field by four men against his will in the fourth quarter was reported as satisfactory at Fort Collins last night. Richardson is suffering from a broken knee cap and complete exhaustion and will not be in Aggie football for several weeks, according to Coach Hughes.

Richardson Improving.

Richardson was injured in the rush that resulted seriously for Leigh, but continued in the game. In the fourth quarter, when the teams lined up, Richardson fell to the ground from exhaustion, but cried to be allowed to finish the game.

Kramer, the husky star on the Tiger left wing, believes that it was the shock of the tackle made by Leigh that caused the injury. "Leigh made a fierce dive for me and when he struck, his chin hit my knee. The force knocked both of us over and we rolled two or three times. Leigh was unconscious before I had stopped rolling, I believe, and it must have been the impact with the ground or somebody's heel in the mixup that caused the injury," said the Tiger end.

Tiger Snap Noticeable.

An incident worthy of comment was the wonderful endurance of the Tigers shown during the game. During the third quarter when time was being taken out for Leigh, instead of resting on the ground as the Aggies did, the Tigers got up and trotted around in circles to keep into good shape and to loosen up the stiffened muscles.

Coach Rothgeb's par excellent judgment in the use of his second string men was an important factor in the Tiger defense. With a light line and a hard-hitting opposition, Rothgeb sent in a fresh man when he saw a player show any signs of exhaustion. Another purpose was in view, that of shooting in the sub player to try him out, because there are but few Tigers that have cinched their position. The second string men are just a shade behind the men who started the game and with the competition for places so keen, the Tigers are always fighting for their positions in practice and in the game. It's like a machine with a number of extra parts for each important function and no matter what happens there is always somebody to take the position and play it like a veteran.

Nebraska Here Saturday.

The first game ever played between the Tigers and the Nebraska Wesleyan team will be the bill that Manager Lynch has arranged for Saturday at Washburn field. The Nebraska team is an unknown quantity in the game, but a defeat at the hands of South Dakota by the score of 35 to 0 and the subsequent defeat of South Dakota by Minnesota put more elements of uncertainty in the battle. It will be a good test of Colorado football against Nebraska ideas and should be a good game. Whether or not the altitude will affect the visitors is not known, but it is believed that Rothgeb's speedy shifty plays will be about as much as the visitors can handle.

The Nebraska team will outweigh the locals about 15 pounds to the man on the line and about 10 in the backfield.

The squad will arrive here Friday in charge of Coach Cline, and will be as follows:

	Weight
Gray, left end	145
Ward, left tackle	245
Farrell, left guard	170
Church, center	170
Johnson, left guard	190
Randall, right tackle	170
Graham, right end	160
Kessler, quarterback	140
Chamberlain, left halfback	180
Aiken, fullback	155
McCandless (Capt.), right halfback	155
Substitutes:
Hudson, end, quarterback	150
Elliott, guard	175
Hollenworth, tackle	170
Mackey, end	180
Ellsworth, halfback	145
Wigman, halfback	155

Squad total weight, 2,805, average, 165.

First team total weight, 1,850, average, 170; line average, 177; backfield average, 157.

The above three players form an invincible part of the Tigers' second string scrub that Coach Rothgeb can call to the field to whom the regulars. Tip Hudson, from Lyons to Fort Collins; Herron, quarterback, who although slight, is a good general, and a hard tackler; Chuck Emery, former Penn State star who is substituting at fullback and also helping to keep the first team fullbacks from getting overconfident; Lee Hollenworth, who is a dependable tackle and has scored one of the Tigers' touchdowns this season; Mackey, end, who is a fast and clever player and has been an important feature of his play.

BILLIARD SHARKS TO PLAY FOR TITLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—It was announced tonight that William F. Hoppe, George Slosson and Harry F. Cline of New York; Orlando Morning, star of Pittsburg; George Sutton and Calvin Demarest of Chicago; Albert Taylor of Milwaukee, and Koji Yamada of Japan, have entered for the world's championship 18.2 balk line billiard tournament to be held here beginning November 11.

Twenty-eight games will be required to complete the regular tournament competitions. Ties will have to be played off. Four prizes will be awarded. The winner will receive $2,500; the second $1,500, the third, $1,000 and the fourth, $500.

MATTY MAKES RECORD IN THROWING TO THE RED SOX

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—In the final world's series battle, Mathewson pitched 124 balls to the batters in the 10 innings. He threw only 97 balls in the first nine innings, the smallest number of balls pitched in nine innings by any twirler during the series. The tenth inning, which was still unconpleted when the game ended, was Mathewson's worst in delivery. He pitched 27 times to the batters in that inning, 16 of which were called balls. Bedient threw 80 balls to New York batsmen in the seven innings he pitched, while Wood tossed 34 balls in three innings.

Finn Runner Makes Three New Records

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 20.—Three world's professional running records were broken by William Kolehmainen of Finland this afternoon when he won an international Marathon race around a circular track in the stadium here. He covered 26 miles, 385 yards in 2:28:59 1-5, lettering the record of 2:31:21 made at Powder Hall, Scotland, last year, by Hans Holmer, who finished second in today's event. Kolehmainen created new 25 and 26-mile figures, 2:22:29 3-5 and 2:28:32 respectively.

JONES WOULD BUY TACOMA CLUB FRANCHISE

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 20.—In a letter received from Billy Sullivan by President Jones of the Northwestern league, the White Sox catcher inquired regarding the value of the Tacoma franchise, and asked Jones' judgment on the proposition.

Jones has not answered the letter, preferring to get Sullivan on the inside and learn from the present owner Ed Watkins. The Tacoma magnate is in the east, and, besides taking in part of the world's series games, will see Garry Herrmann, chairman of the national commission, regarding the results of Twirler Jack Hoyt, whom Seattle claims, but who was sold to the St. Louis Nationals by the Tacoma club.

Watkins said when in Portland attending the Northwestern meeting last week that he would not sell Tacoma's franchise for less than $25,000, but since he could not raise it himself he would consider selling the franchise. If the Jones deal is not consummated Tacoma may be made a baseball maker.

To Depose Murphy From Head of Cubs

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—That there is likely to be a new man at the head of the Chicago National league baseball club next season was learned from a reliable source recently. It was said at the present time Charles W. Murphy, president of the club, and supposedly owner of a controlling interest, is dickering with a party in New York for the sale of the Cubs.

The name of the probable buyer could not be obtained, but one who is on the inside in the affairs of the National league said it was Max Fleischmann, the Cincinnati capitalist, who recently purchased the 10 shares held by Frank Chance. There also seemed a possibility, according to the informant, that the deal might fall through because Mr. Murphy set a price on his holdings which would make the Chicago club a $1,000,000 investment.

At the same time, it was thought Murphy and the prospective buyer would come to terms, because it was believed Murphy was anxious to get out of the game after the recent trouble with Manager Chance. The purpose of the new buyer, it was claimed was to keep Frank Chance as manager, but to oust Charles Murphy out of the club business.

While Manager Chance still was in the New York hospital recovering from his kidney operation, President Murphy came out with a public announcement that Chance would not be manager of the Cubs next season. Chance followed by saying that he did not wish to quit, and was ready to sign as leader once more, and Murphy has offered no reply since then. The Chicago fans undoubtedly are strong for Frank Chance, and for that reason it is said that Murphy sees he has made a great mistake and now is willing to get out of baseball. He has been president of the Cubs since the fall of 1905, and it is estimated that since that time he has made close to a million dollars out of the game.

The Fargo Automobile club of Fargo, N. D., is seeking a site for a club house which it proposes to erect early in the spring. The plan is to build a club house on the banks of the Red river of the north, a few miles from Fargo. Golf links and tennis courts will be provided and the club will be conducted as a town and country club.

TOMMY BURNS A PROMOTER

Tommy Burns, ex-champion heavyweight pugilist, has given up the idea of returning to the ring, and will promote boxing contests in Calgary, Can., where he is living. He has built an arena with seats for 4,000, and it is to be roofed over so that bouts can be pulled off in winter. The arena is located 10 feet outside of the city limits, where a reform agitation cannot affect the club.

GEORGES CARPENTIER,
Premier boxer of France, who is coming to America soon to display his fistic wares. Carpentier has been successively the title holder in the bantamweight, featherweight, lightweight, welterweight and middleweight classes, and is still taking on weight. Carpentier has signified his desire to fight middleweight championship matches with Eddie McGoorty and Mike Gibbons.

M'Donald Beats Rose's Shot Mark

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—A world's record with the 21-pound shot put was made by Patrick McDonald, of the Irish-American Athletic club, at Celtic park today, increasing the distance to 42 feet 4 1-4 inches. The previous record, 40 feet 3 3-8 inches, was made by Ralph Rose of California, in 1897.

Louis Scott of South Patterson Athletic club, 10-mile national champion, broke the American four-mile record, his time being 20:08 1-5, which is 2 4-5 seconds faster than George Bonhag covered the distance two years ago.

Auto Notes

The words "City of Toronto," in conspicuous letters, must be painted on all motor cars owned by Toronto, Can., under a resolution adopted by the board of controllers of the municipality.

The grand jury at Portland, Ore., has recommended an ordinance prohibiting automobiles for hire to stand on public streets. The jury asserts that the practice causes delinquency to minors.

Citizens of Moose Jaw, in the province of Alberta, Can., are elated over the possibility of buying their future cars "home-made," instead of having them shipped from the factories in the states. A motor manufactory is being erected there.

In case the steering gear shows backlash, and shifting the wheel around a quarter turn does not remedy the trouble, investigate the keys in the system. A worn keyway on the rocker shaft will produce a most annoying backlash.

In soldering flexible cables, if possible avoid the use of a flux containing acid. Such a flux will creep up between the fine wires forming the cable and corrode them, in time completely eating away the wire and breaking the circuit. Rosin dissolved in alcohol is a good flux for such operations.

Never completely fill the gear or differental case with lubricant. Remember that the grease must have room to flow around the case, and that there is considerable expansion due to heat when running. Some cases are provided with vents, which admit air to the interior to take care of this expansion and contraction, and these vents should be kept free from dirt which tends to clog them.

The taxicab fever has struck El Paso, Texas, and as no antidote has as yet been discovered for this disease, the clicking instruments soon will be heard on the streets of that city. Two taxicabs have been ordered by a garage man, and as the prevailing rates for automobile transportation range anywhere from $5 to $8 an hour, the taxis are likely to divert some "loose cash" to his pockets.

According to the statistics furnished by the state registrar of automobiles, the rural sections of Ohio are buying automobiles as never before. The wheat and oats crop is being rapidly converted into motor cars, as is shown in the number of applications for registration coming from the rural counties. Of the licenses now issued about 80 per cent come from the strictly agricultural communities.

Springs that are squeaky may be cured by jacking up the body of the car in such a way that the chassis hangs from the springs and separates the leaves, and then apply flake graphite. A little on the point of a penknife, distributed here and there on each leaf, will do the trick. In case the springs are stiff it is probable that they are rusted and they will have to be taken apart. After dismounting the springs, separate the leaves and remove the rust with emery paper. Then apply graphite and reassemble.

Ontario's revenue last year from the sale of licenses for motor vehicles totaled $50,831, twice the amount received during the year 1910, which was $24,394. The revenue for 1906, the first year fees were imposed, was only $15,235.15. The licenses issued last year totaled 11,339, and for 1910, 4,230, while, in 1906, 1,176 licenses were issued. Fees collected for issuing charters to automobile corporations totaled $235,663.10.

There are now indications that efforts will be made during the coming session of the Pennsylvania legislature to enact drastic antispeeding laws. As a result of the accident in Philadelphia, in which nine men lost their lives at one time, Mayor Blankenburg of that city has issued orders to the police to curb high speeding as much as possible, and is having drawn a bill which he will put before the state law makers. He favors fines of $10 to $15 for the first offense of reckless driving, $50 for a second offense and $250 for a third, with forfeiture of license for a fourth.

With a regard for the comfort and safety of the Los Angeles traffic, the officers of the Automobile Club of Southern California have worked out a quicker and more efficient plan than the one now employed for cleaning the city streets. The plan involves cleaning the streets by means of air tanks fastened to the street cars. The cleaning of the streets could then be quickly and effectually done during the hours from 2 to 4 a. m. Motorists who have had fr and accidents caused by tire ski while the streets were being fl under the present system are wat the outcome of the safer plan interest.

WHAT IS CAUSE OF MANY INJURIES TO PLAYER

Old Players Puzzled Over Question--Seven and One Killed This Year in State

Injury to seven Colorado football players and the death of one in the season which is only about one-third over is causing considerable comment in gridiron circles in Colorado, and so far no plausible explanation has been ofered. Whether the new rule allowing a team four downs to punch the line for 10 yards, other concepts of the rules, or whether the teams are so evenly matched in the state, are qualities undetermined in connection with the question.

The general fitness of the Colorado college team has prevented any injury of serious nature to players of that squad. The team plays hard, harder than for years, but they have been coached in the various methods of warding off any serious consequences.

Burgess Recovering.

Burgess of Wyoming was injured in a game with the Tigers a week ago, but has been able to practice, his sprained back proving far less serious than was first believed.

The only fatality of the season was that in which Capt. Alvin Schro Longmont was killed three week

D. U. Badly Crippled.

The Denver university football is in the worst crippled state in as the result of the terrific gam Utah last Saturday, in which th isters not only suffered defeat score of 66 to 0, but lost three o star men from the game for s weeks. The players hurt are: C Schroeder, who is in a Salt Lak hospital suffering from concuss the brain; Halfback Barker h breastbone fractured, and Ha Flemming has a dislocated kn The two last mentioned are no ously injured, but will probab kept from the game the rest season.

Schroeder received his injury first quarter of the game, and their captain gone, the team w able to withstand the plunging Utah backs. Although his condi not critical, it may keep him the game with Occidental, which plays Saturday.

BACKFIELD PLAYERS TO BE STARS THIS YE

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—This is "backfield year" in football. Practically every new man of any real promise whatever developed this far in the east at least is a member of the ball-carrying corps. It seems certain that when the curtain shall have rung down at the end of November, the fellow stamped as the season's greatest gridiron warrior will be one of the quartet behind the line. Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Pennsylvania, the Big Four, all have their one particular crack who has jumped into the fore at the outset.

During the last decade the bright special lights of the several seasons have hailed from almost every position. Last year he was an end, the one, only and peerless Sam White of Princeton, who picked up fumbled balls and galloped over half the field length in scoring victories over Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth. The preceding season he was a quarterback, Earl Sprackling of Brown, who practically unsupported by a mediocre team, tore off open field runs of dazzling brilliancy, his greatest achievement being an almost single-handed defeat of Yale. In 1909 Jack Kilpatrick, a typical Yale style of 200-pound end, was the sensation, his wing being totally impregnable all year and his work in getting down under kicks putting him among the greatest ends in history.

Coy a Pulverizer.

The season of 1908 brought forth the man considered by many the greatest that ever played. He was a fullback, the tremendous Ted Coy, of Yale, the best all-around kicker of his year and the most powerful line pulverizer within memory. That this year will offer a man even closely comparable with him is not to be expected. Another fullback was the star of 1908 in Sam Kennard of Harvard, who made a field goal that beat Yale. Walter Eckersall, Chicago's marvelous quarterback of 1906, was in a class by himself, as a dropkicker, was an untouchable specter in an open field, a sturdy interferer for his backs and an unfailing general in directing the attack.

Tom Shevlin, a human combination of battering ram, stonewall and bullet, who featured every Yale game i was a greater end even than the Kilpatrick because of the fearful with which he hurled his 200 p down the field. In 1904 the guar sition had its day. John De Wit tainly the most sensational and the most capable linemen in th nals of the game, held the cen the stage. His long run a la White, followed by a 45-yard goa er a fair catch, humbled Yale an the Tigers the title.

Willie Heston, a halfback of t resistible, keep-on-going, tear-apart sort, won the 1903 honor Michigan. Now, coming to the year of the decade, we find Col possessing the top rung man. H Harold Weeks, the wonderful hal and hurdler, whose fame has fly New York's big university the years, though the game he helped great has been under faculty ba Surveying the entire 10 years, w three ends, two quarterbacks, guard, two fullbacks and two backs in the conspicuous class. In er words, there are four linemen six backs. The line seems to stan tle chance of catching up any difference this year, everything ing to the back field increasing its jority.

Second Coy in Flynn.

The quartet which has bounded fore included Flynn of Yale, Hard of Harvard, Fred Trenkman of P ton, and Harrington of Pennsyl Of the bunch, Hardwick and look the best, with any edge in of Flynn. The latter played his varsity game for Yale against Syr a week ago and was two-thirds o attack as well as a star on de Among other things, he scored t Yale's three touchdowns and still other which was disallowed becaus officials considered that he hurdled tackler. All of them were on ru between 20 and 30 yards. At Yale are booming Lefty Flynn as a se Ted Coy. That, to be sure, is a little too far, but after seeing great performance of last week, we not do otherwise than declare hi appear at least the equal of any since the great Ted.

AMUSEMENT TAX FOR FUNERALS

From the New York Tribune.

The mayor of Stassfurt recently conceived the ingenious idea of levying a tax on the dead of the community. According to the latest decree issued by his honor a funeral is to be considered an amusement and taxed as such. The widow of a citizen applying for a funeral permit received the following document: "Five marks. Permit to arrange a festival. Herewith permission is granted the Widow Liedke of this city to hold a funeral parade with music on the fifth inst., the procession to march through the Wachtel, Rosmarin, Prinzen, Brunken, Stein, Fursten and Hackbinger streets to the outskirts of the town."

IN THE LAND OF THE TIGER

From the Strand Magazine.

The ordinary Malay house is built on posts from five to seven feet high; but one seen by a traveler was perched high up in a tree. In was the home of a man, his wife and family, who said it was placed in this unusual situation so as to be out of the way of the numerous tigers which then infested the neighborhood. As tigers have been known to jump 18 feet in vertical height, somewhere about 20 feet is considered to be the limit of safety. The Malayan house is a frail and flimsy structure of sticks tied together with rattan, thatched with palm leaves and walled with plaited bamboo, or, as in this case, with the bark of trees. It is therefore an easy matter for a tiger, with its great strength, to break into a house and attack the inhabitants.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

afterward cursed Monroe to his face, and that Monroe was on the point of ringing for a servant to escort him from the White house, when Crawford thought better of himself and apologized to the president for his behavior.

There was a general unrest among the people in 1824. They felt that they had not been consulted in the selection of their presidents. Some of the states still chose their electors by their legislatures, and in others property qualifications kept the majority of the citizens from voting. The western states were democratic, as opposed to the aristocratic east, and they were tired of the "high-brow" Virginia dynasty and the succession of the secretaries. They wanted a man for president just for once who had not been secretary of state in his predecessor's cabinet.

People Favored Jackson.

There were two popular candidates, Henry Clay and Andrew Jackson, but the latter appealed most to the ordinary citizen. In the dog days of 1822 the Tennessee legislature adopted a resolution proposing Jackson for president as "the soldier, the statesman and the honest man."

John Quincy Adams sought to hitch his presidential wagon to a star by getting Andrew Jackson to agree to stand on a ticket with him as vice president, and in 1824, on the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans, he gave a great dinner to Jackson, which a thousand or more attended. Jackson had been sent to Washington as a senator, in the hope that the acquaintanceships he would form would help him in his contest.

Crawford wanted to be the party candidate, and to that end a congressional caucus was called. Printed side by side with the announcement of the call of the caucus was another announcement stating that 181 out of the 262 members of congress would not attend it. When the caucus met there were 66 members and two proxies present. It nominated Crawford and Gallatin, who were the last presidential nominees ever to receive a nomination at the hands of a caucus. This system had sprung up in 1800 and continued until 1824. Virginia and a few other states backed up caucus rule and appealed to the country to stand by it. But other states were equally earnest in their protests that it was undemocratic and ought to be discontinued. In Pennsylvania it was suggested that there ought to be a national delegate convention to choose the candidates, but the expense of travel then was so great that the suggestion could not be acted upon.

Clinton Withdrew From Race.

Early in the campaign South Carolina nominated William Lowndes. This caused John C. Calhoun's friends to get busy and the state switched over to him. Later Ohio nominated DeWitt Clinton, and this caused such ridicule that another meeting was called to consider a motion to rescind the action. This meeting was held in a Cincinnati church, and the crush was so great the participants had to retire to an open field for the house to divide. Clinton withdrew from the running, and John C. Calhoun switched over to be vice presidential candidate on both the Adams and the Jackson tickets. Gallatin also withdrew, under pressure.

Before the fight Crawford was stricken by paralysis and retired to "a mansion house in the country" which stood at Fourteenth street and Massachusetts avenue, five minutes from the White House, where he could not see even his intimate friends. His signature to public documents had to be affixed with a facsimile stamp by his daughter.

In Massachusetts an "unpledged electoral ticket" was chosen. In Ohio the Columbus Gazette announced a Clay ticket, which the Jacksonites dubbed the "We" ticket. In New York the people were clamoring for the right to choose the electors, but 17 members of the state senate prevented the passage of a law giving them that right. Their names were printed on great big posters in glaring letters, and surrounded with big black borders. These were posted in saloons, tacked on trees, hung in store windows and generally circulated. Only one of the 17 offered for reelection, and the overwhelming defeat he met showed the temper of the people. The legislature, after a long wrangle, chose 25 Adams electors, seven Clay electors and four for Crawford. Three of the Clay electors deserted him, else he and Crawford would have tied for third place in the electoral colleges.

In North Carolina there was a fusion ticket known as the Peoples ticket. Each voter was to write on his ballot whether he preferred Adams or Jackson, and the electors were to be apportioned between them in the ratio of their strength, but the agreement was afterward repudiated and Jackson got the entire vote. Adams would have been entitled to a third of North Carolina's vote on the strength of the agreement.

Many Polls Taken.

There were innumerable party polls during the progress of the campaign. Wherever there was a crowd—on a steamboat, at a court day meeting, at gatherings of the militia—polls were made to discover the drift of public sentiment. Campaign badges for the first time became popular. Great numbers of fancy vests with the pictures of Adams, Jackson, Clay and Crawford, were ordered from France, and the voter could show whom he was supporting by the picture on his vest.

La Fayette visited the country during the campaign and the interest of the people toward the end of the fight shifted from politics to the celebration of the great visitor's return. But when the returns did come in it was found that no candidate had a majority in the electoral colleges, and that the house would have to elect.

Clay, who was speaker, had run fourth, so the choice was to fall on Adams, Jackson or Crawford. It was charged that Clay had made a bargain with Adams whereby he should become secretary of state in return for throwing his strength to Adams. Clay declared that the men who made the charge was "a base and infamous calumniator, a dastard, and a liar, who, if he would make himself known, would be held responsible to all the laws that govern men of honor." Representative Kremer of Pennsylvania, whose claim to fame was a leopard skin overcoat and an eccentric manner, replied that he was the author of the charge and would prove it. Henry Clay thought better of his implied threat to take the matter to the duelling ground at Bladensburg, and instead asked the house to investigate the matter and expel him if it found the charge true. When the house asked Kremer for his proof he backed down. Jackson himself afterward repeated the charge.

When the house voted, Adams won on the first ballot. He declared to the committee which notified him of his election that if the constitution had provided a method whereby he could do it, he would have resigned and resubmitted his case to the people.

COST OF LIVING IN EUROPE

The Same Comforts as Expensive There as in This Country

James Edmund Dunning in the American Review of Reviews.

The cost of living in Europe generally, and in France in particular, is as high in scale as it is in the United States under equal conditions.

The so-called "cheaper living" in Europe is effected, when it is effected, by social differences only, i. e., a difference in the mode of life, not in the cost of sustenance.

My observations, for which I claim no special superiority beyond some possible advantage of very extended contact with the subject, lead to the conclusion that wherever European populations advance sufficiently toward the American mode of life, the expense thereof is like our own. The cost of housing, service, comfort and subsistence is standardized on world-wide lines by worldwide economic and physical conditions.

Supply and Demand.

When motor car tires are in special demand in North America, trade "booms," and prices rise in Borneo and Ceylon. The cost of producing furniture at Grand Rapids, Mich., or of hauling beef to New York harbor, influences that of housing and subsistence in the British Isles as quickly as the cable can transmit quotations. The sheep herder in South Africa has heretofore got on in decency without tiled bathrooms and motor cars; but the day approaches when he will want those luxuries, and regard them as necessities, and when it comes he will pay for them about as we do, or perhaps a little more.

It is only a question of comparison, and the growing human taste for luxury in living.

There are apartments in Paris (it means "flats")—rented for as much as $20,000 a year—which is close enough to New York's present limit of $22,000. They are, of course, in the Avenue des Champs Elysees, which means a good deal in terms of dollars and cents. A first-rate apartment, in a good part of Paris, for Americans, with all of the American conveniences, can be had for from $1,000 to $3,000 a year. A fairly good flat, in the same superior quarter, can be had for $800, but it will face a courtyard only and will be small and dark. These flats, renting at from $1,000 to $3,000, will be smaller than similar New York apartments in number of rooms. The rent will not include heat, light, telephone or constant elevator service. The servants' rooms will be detached in the distant, unchaperoned and unheated attic. There will be no servants' bath, no mail chute, no intercommunicating telephone and no adequate central heat.

Cooks Get Rakeoffs.

Account must be taken of the fact that in Europe the cook does the buying and thus absolutely controls the food appropriation. She (men cooks are infinitely more troublesome) keeps an account with her mistress which is really only a sop to the latter's dignity, since there is no way of ascertaining the truth of the prices stated in it, even if one goes to the shops and personally interviews the cook's friends and coconspirators on the spot.

Whether or not the prices for which reimbursement is demanded by the cook are genuine, she is paid a commission of one cent on each 20 cents disbursed (one sou to each franc), which custom is fixed and has not been overset, according to very recent reports, by any of the transplanted American housekeepers who have proceeded blithely to France to revolutionize domestic methods. This commission is, naturally, charged on the retail price of the food, and does not come out of the grocer's pocket. It amounts to five cents on the dollar, or to from $75 to $100 a year in the average prosperous upper middle or professional class household in Europe.

The truth is that in America the prudent housewife always knows (and generally by reference to her evening paper) the exact retail cost of every article of food and can go to the market any day and make her purchases on the basis of fixed and generally advertised prices; whereas, on the contrary, no French housewife above the humble class could do so, even were the prices available for comparison. As I have frequently attempted (not always successfully) to show to Americans who have dreamed of the legendary cheap life of Europe, the only classes which live cheaply on the continent are those at the two extremes of the social and economic scale, the comparatively poor and the comparatively rich—the one by its identity with the market organization, and the other by multiplying the effect of certain special differences in the rent of extensive property and the pay of domestic servants.

Extra Pay Day Also.

To the middle class between, there is no escape from the toll exacted by the sundry middlemen.

Added to the cook's commission is the one month's extra pay each year given to all servants in Europe at the New Year, (though in Italy it is divided equally between New Year and the midsummer holiday August 20), and the numerous tips paid of necessity to clerks, messengers, delivery drivers and similar people of all kinds.

French cooks in France (like those in Italy) receive usually from $12 to $13 a month, plus the extras. Housemaids receive from $8 to $9. They are in no way so efficient as American servants of the same class, nor do the same servants work so well in France as they do when moved to America and settled in the different atmosphere. Men servants are paid from $12 to $20 a month and chauffeurs from $40 to $60, plus board and clothing. The last is a large saving over American pay for chauffeurs, but I am expressly writing at this time of the very much greater number of people everywhere who have so far successfully managed to achieve dignity of living and firmness of soul unaided by a motor car.

WANT WOMEN ARCHITECTS

From the New York Evening Post.

Women who have to furnish houses and live in them want women to enter the field as architects. No woman architect, they say, would design a house with doors and windows so arranged in the chambers that you can't get a good light on your bureau no matter where you put it, and with the only bed space so arranged that you have to face a window, no matter which way you lie. No woman architect would waste back-hall space, which should be compact and easy to keep clean. No woman architect would design a house, or an apartment, of eight or nine rooms, with only one bath. No woman architect would plan such an abomination as the "hall bedroom." No woman architect would cut up space into bits of rooms—dens, alcoves, music rooms—too small to be comfortably used in any way whatever.

If a woman architect built a window seat, she would not have a dinky little bench of it. She would design it long and wide enough to hold cushions enough for a sleepy person to curl up on for a nap.

When a woman architect had a space that could be made into a tiny chamber or into two commodious closets, she would decide for closets. And, while she was on the closet question, the woman architect would not forget closets for brooms, sweepers, dustpans, dustcloths, and the like. A woman architect would have her dining room longer than wide, so as to give space for the sideboard. If a woman architect designed an open fireplace, she would have the chimney wide enough to draw properly. If she built a butler's pantry, it would not be a little slit in the wall, just large enough to hold the refrigerator and the door to the dumb waiter. It would have room in it for the necessary table on which to make the salads, and whip the eggs and cream. A woman architect would see to it that the houses of her designing carried ventilation schemes that made ample provision for cross-currents; that cellars and storerooms were commodious, and that rooms that opened on porches had at least one window wide to the sun.

Most of all, the woman architect would be able to carry in her head the effect of the house when furnished, and in that way would not make the blunders in wall spacing that necessitate a bed's having to sit out in the middle of a room, or the jamming of a bureau against a door, or the poor lighting of a desk.

In a word, the woman architect, because of her womanness, would, if insisted, have a sense of those things that make home a place of comfort.

Amoy, in China, sends about the million narcissus bulbs to the United States every year. The declared value of these bulbs in 1910 was $10,513, and in 1911, $7,043. This is also the port of China from which a great amount of the joss sticks in this country are imported.
